PRES. TAFT AND GOV. WILSON

Rival Candidates Exchange Greetings and Then Talk of Work of the Campaign

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—President Taft and Governor Woodrow Wilson at last have met and shaken hands. It was in Mr. Taft's suite at the Copley Plaza.

The original plan arranged by the newspaper photographers was to have the meeting in one of the first floor reception rooms, but at the last minute Mr. Wilson felt it would be better if some way was arranged so he should go to meet Mr. Taft, rather than have the president come for all that was the one who came forward with the greeting. Advised of the presence of the governor, he had left his place at the dinner of the chamber of commerce with Governor Foss, the mayor, Col. Harry Russell and Bernard J. Rothwell and a few others, and went to his suite, but he left the door open.

Thus hardly had the governor appeared in the doorway before taking two steps forward, he gave his greeting. "How are you, governor?" he said. "I am mighty glad to meet you," and as he spoke his hand and the hand of his visitor went up simultaneously and they clasped.

Some one made a faint attempt at applause. "Has it been a hard day?" asked the president, humorously, looking over the governor.

"Yes," said Mr. Wilson, smiling back. "I am just getting my first lesson in campaign traveling, and I suppose I am not wholly accustomed yet." "Oh, that will come in time," said the president.

"I am glad indeed, Mr. President," said the governor, very slowly, "for this opportunity to meet you." "I am glad," said the president.

Then he asked the governor as to how his voice was standing it, how his tour of the day had gone and plans for the morning. The two men talked quietly for a few minutes and then the governor said good night, and turned to go to his rooms.

As he left he extended his thanks to the gentlemen connected with the chamber of commerce for their courtesy. "President Taft," he said, "is a man for whom I have the greatest respect in the world and I am glad of the opportunity."

Thus the incident closed, with happiness for all but the newspaper photographers, who missed the historical picture that they had been planning for.

Face a mass of scabs—Resinol cured

Philadelphia, Pa., July 26, 1912
"My baby's trouble first started on his cheek in little pimples. It spread all over his face till he was a mass of thick scabs. It would itch him so he would scratch it till it would bleed, and his pillow and nightgown would be a mass of blood in the morning. He would cry all night. This lasted about three months. I sent for samples of Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and when I put them on they seemed to ease him, so I bought a fifty-cent jar of Resinol Ointment, and before I used it all his face was cured." "WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER"

I have a message to deliver to the people of the district. This can best be done by being a candidate.

"A candidate can reach the voters and talk to them face to face. They will listen to him long enough to find out what he stands for and whether he represents them. The time has long gone by when a person who wishes to influence or convince the people can secretly sit in his study or editorial chair or even behind the candidates and direct the action of the citizens. The days of bossism and machine politics have passed.

"The candidate must step out into the open and fight his way by legitimate argument and approved acts at service to popular favor. He cannot hope to secure that favor by hiding under the cover of monopoly and shielding himself behind the protecting folds of specially privileged corporations, and high handed finance. I propose to talk to the voters of this district as man to man, to meet them in large or small numbers at any times and places they may desire to meet me.

"To be of service to them is great enough ambition for any man."

Other speakers at the meeting included Prof. Joseph L. Larson, of the Allen school of Newton, Daniel J. Cosgrove, candidate for lieutenant governor, William N. Osgood, candidate for congress in the 5th district, Cecil P. Dodge, representative candidate in the 14th district, Rev. F. G. Alger, Rev. A. C. Ferrin, Rev. W. A. Wood and Rev. George C. Wright.

The U. S. Bunting Company Employees Are Being Kept Busy Except in the Weave Room

EXTERIOR VIEW OF MILL IN WHICH WEAVING IS DONE AT THE BUNTING MILLS

The coming presidential election is a real month. The section principally affected at Lowell is the weaving department of the United States Bunting Company, where only three-quarters of the looms are being operated. In several of the other departments business is also very slow.

One of the officials of the mill informed the writer that the presidential election is the worst for their products, known mills, and while many were of and during the past as at the present the impression that the slack time was time, when the election season, had the cause of considerable worry, been on, they were obliged to curtail in many of their departments. The slack season will probably continue for several months.

The Bunting manufactures an excellent line of goods, and these are sold in all sections of the country. They employ a fine class of operatives, who are well paid. Some of the present employees have been with the company for many years, and owing to the excellent treatment accorded the operatives they very seldom seek employment elsewhere.

The above cut shows the weave room, where all the looms are located, the room in which at present the greatest slack spell is in progress.

OLD HORSE WAS KILLED

Had Been Driven by Mr. Calderwood for Years

A horse owned by Calderwood and Robbins, tobacco dealers and driven by Mr. Calderwood, fell down near the corner of Merrimack and Button streets about noon today and a great deal of difficulty was experienced in removing the animal. Humane Society Agent Richardson with his assistant, Mr. Gilmore, arrived at once at the scene of the accident and put their efforts in an attempt to get the horse on its feet.

For a whole hour the officers with the assistance of others worked without success for the horse refused to move. Boards were used to prop the animal up, but as soon as these were removed, he would fall back again.

The animal is extremely old and Mr. Calderwood has owned it for years. On several other occasions when the horse stumbled and fell the same trouble was met with in trying to get it to rise. The horse was suffering with two bad sprains and was cut over the left eye and about the fore-legs. Upon the advice of Mr. Richardson, the veterinary ambulance was summoned to the spot and the horse loaded in. This latter feat was accomplished by means of a block and pulley. A chain was fastened around the body of the animal and blankets arranged so as to prevent injury from the links cutting into the flesh and in this way the men succeeded in loading the aged horse into the wagon. It is quite probable that the animal will be killed.

When part way home Mr. Calderwood decided that after all he had better have the horse killed.

AN AEROPLANE ARMADA

The First Review of One Ever Held

PARIS, Sept. 27.—The first review ever held of a complete aeroplane armada took place today at Villa Compiègne near Paris. No fewer than 72 French army flying machines with their full complements of pilots and observers and the attached park of motor trucks bearing supplies (there passed in review before the French minister for war Alexander Millerand). There was great enthusiasm among the spectators as the armament saluted the minister of war.

An extraordinary spectacle was presented at the conclusion of the review when 20 aeroplanes rose in a flock, circled for a few moments over the parade ground and then sped off toward the east to resume their stations on the German frontier. The remainder of the armada scattered in the course of the afternoon to various military posts.

STEPHEN R. DOW

Head of Stock Exchange Firm That Made Assignment, Refused to Answer Questions

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Stephen R. Dow, head of the stock exchange firm of Stephen R. Dow & Co., which made an assignment yesterday, when summoned today before the committee of the exchange on law and insolvency, refused to answer any questions under the rule which gives the accused 15 days in which to reply to charges.

The governing committee of the exchange, which had convened in anticipation of some report from the committee on law and insolvency, adjourned without action on the Dow case.

District Attorney Pelletier stated today that the Dow failure would be investigated by the grand jury which convenes on Oct. 7.

HELD CLAMBAKE

The members of Club Fleur de Lis held a clam bake at their well appointed club house on the shores of Long Pond yesterday afternoon. Practically all the members were present and they had as their guests friends from Lowell, Lawrence, Nashua and other places.

Joe Chaput, the genial chef, had charge of the food and as on previous occasions he proved to be what he has always been, a host master in the culinary art. Stuffed clams and broiled lobster constituted the menu and all enjoyed the repast to the fullest extent. The bake was followed by a very interesting entertainment.

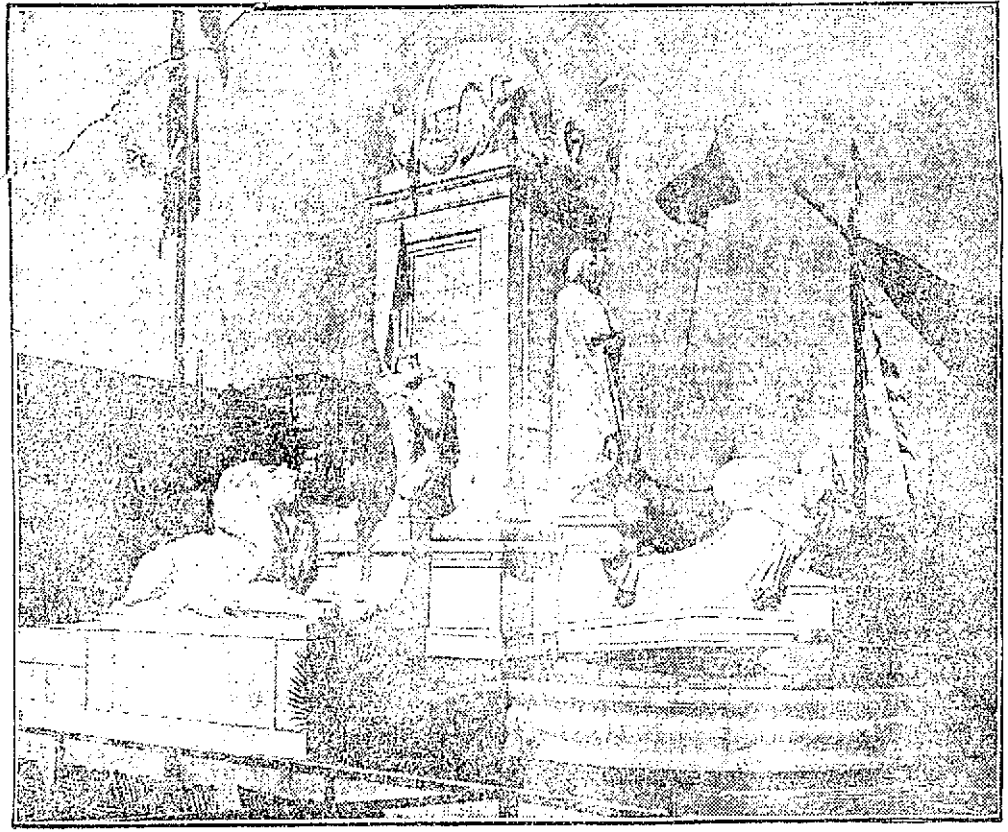

Body Identified

The body of the young man found dead in a local hotel yesterday morning and taken to the undertaking rooms of Higgins Brothers in Lawrence street, was identified today as James Whisk and not William Blunk, as was at first reported. The dead man's brother William came to Lowell today and went to the funeral parlors, where he made known the dead man's identity. The brother said that James was 22 years of age and came to Lowell, Wednesday in search of work. William resides in Rockland, Mass., his brother was living with him up to the time he left for Lowell. The surviving brother said that deceased was in good health and attributes his death to his unfamiliarity with the city. Deceased also leaves two sisters in France.

The members of the immediate congregation of St. Peter's church are rehearsing for the presentation of the opera, "Mlada," to be given in the near future. Frederick C. Hunt, supervisor of music in the public schools, is in charge of the production.

Trying to Make Columbus Day a National Holiday

Movement Has Been Started and May be Successful

THE COLUMBUS MEMORIAL IN WASHINGTON

Heretofore, celebrations of Columbus day, Oct. 12, have been observed in twenty-three states as a national day of rest, have been observed in twenty-three states as a national day of rest, have been observed in twenty-three states as a national day of rest.

one of the president of the United States, members of his cabinet, the Italian ambassador and other officials, many high officials and non officials and other prominent citizens from all parts of the United States. More than 50,000 residents of the national capital witnessed the unveiling of the $150,000 memorial. In honor of the occasion there was a grand parade, a public banquet, a display of fireworks on the White House lawn and other manifestations of rejoicing.

Quite appropriately the visitors to Washington for the first time of the unveiling of the monument were met at the railroad station, near the great Columbus monument, first of all the city, many visitors. It stands in the place in front of the station. The figure of Columbus faces the sunset, as he did in his memorable voyage.

The memorial has taken the form of a fountain, with a tall shaft, reaching the figure of the discoverer. The figure is fifty-five feet high. The base of the statue of the discoverer is a group of figures, representing the first of all the city, many visitors. It stands in the place in front of the station. The figure of Columbus faces the sunset, as he did in his memorable voyage.

On the top of the shaft is a globe, guarded by great stone eagles, and two eagles stand guard the extremities of the granite balustrade. In front of the fountain, the globe indicates the world, and around it is the western hemisphere, discovered by Columbus. The memorial was the work of the late Daniel H. Burnham, the architect, and Lorado Taft, the sculptor.

GOVERNOR WILSON IN FALL RIVER

He Addressed Large Meeting and Said Lowell Paid the Lowest Wages in the State

BARRE, Sept. 27.—Gov. Wilson's train was 25 minutes late into Barre yesterday where Col. William A. Gaston, Representative George H. Ellis of Newton and others interested in the success of the agricultural fair were at the station to escort the candidate to the fair grounds, about three miles away.

At the fair grounds about 5000 people shouted a welcome to the distinguished guest. The speaker's stand was decorated in Princeton colors and streamers. The auto that conveyed the governor to the grounds was also gaily bedecked in the colors of Old Nassau.

Col. Gaston led the way to the grandstand that was jammed with folks who turned out to see the democratic nominee. The colonel was arrayed in his best farmer's clothes and with an air who in hand rapped for order. In the front row sat distinguished democratic farmers like Gov. Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald, Congressman John A. Thayer, Robert M. Bennett, Joseph H. O'Neill, Edward F. McSweeney, Col. A. C. Drinkwater, Thomas F. Dwyer, Thomas P. Riley, David L. Walsh.

Ten-Minute Talk to Farmers
Gov. Wilson made a 10-minute speech in which he told his good farmer friends what, in his opinion, the government should do to help them market their crops.

Gov. Wilson was followed by Gov. Foss who told what he had tried to get the republican legislature to do to assist farmers in their annual cattle fairs.

He also said that he stood for railroad legislation that would regulate.

When Mayor Fitzgerald stood to speak a bunch of high school girls set up the cry: "We want Sweet Adeline." The band played the tune and they got it.

After that Gov. Wilson said: "I am very glad to find myself here in the center of this great Commonwealth with these beautiful surroundings, and I must say that the people in the setting are more interesting to me than the setting itself."

"As I came up here my thoughts were full of the interest which naturally center in an occasion of this kind. It seems to me that the farmers of this country have a great deal that they can legitimately demand of the government, not merely of the government at Boston, but also of the government at Washington. For the interesting part of all political contests now to my thought is this: We are just upon the eve of finding out what the government can really do for the people. There has been a power, I am sorry to say, intervening between the people and the government of the United States, and we must get rid of that intermediary before the people and the government will come to an explicit and cordial understanding with one another."

Government's Duties
"When that has been done, the government of the United States will be able to do what it has been so belated in attempting, namely, it will be able to supply the basis and foundation for co-operative endeavor in this country as the basis and foundation for those things that have been supplied in countries like Germany, for example. These are the things that it seems to me the government can do."

Heretofore we have stuck in the old conception that all the government had to do was to keep peace among us, but the government has already been acknowledged to be the proper instrument for supplying some of the necessary means of our life.
"For example, the government supplies roads. It supplies highways and upon the same principle exactly the government is now about to begin to supply great water highways as well as great road highways, because while we have called the railroads of this country highways, they are not highways. Upon highways nobody has the prescriptive right of way, whereas upon railroads one company with its vehicles has such right. Now, the difference between the railroad and the road is that one is supplied in an exclusive fashion by private endeavor, whereas the other is supplied by the government.

Hands Must Be Freed

"Now, while you are deeply interested in being supplied with roads, you want to know where the roads lead to and what they are for. You know in connection with the Department of Agriculture in Washington there has been set up a good roads department, but there is a great deal more that the government of the United States can do for you than to supply you with good roads."

"There is a work waiting to be done which I want to mention here this afternoon. The government can supply the farmer with detailed information as to all the markets in which he can dispose of his goods, give him this information at the proper time, supply him with the additional information of the routes over which he can make his shipments, of the freight rates and the express rates, and the time involved, and after it has done for the farmer what the cooperative associations of the farmers might do for themselves. It has put him in touch with all the opportunities by which he can dispose of his product to the best advantage."

Battle of the Ballots

"There are men in this country, men to whom we do not ordinarily look for aid in matters of this kind, men like the president, for example, of the great Frisco system of railroads, Mr. Taft, who is going out and doing what is for the interest of the railroads, but also for the interest of the community. He is building up the great farming interests in the communities which his railroad touches, and he is building them up by knowledge, by co-operation, by knowing what he is about, and enabling them to know what they are about."

"So that my enthusiasm for the future is largely based upon my knowledge of what the government can do to bring the people of the United States into co-operative and vital union with one another in the prosecution of their industries. But you can't do that until the hand of special privilege is withdrawn from its present mischievous interference, from its present mischievous control."

"The government is ready to serve you, but the government isn't free to serve you, so that before all our programs comes this great project of freeing the government and returning it to the hands of the people."

"This is a fighting day. We are not going to fight with bullets, but we are going to fight with ballots; and we are going to rid this government of the incubus of special interests. In order that the wealth, which is now too narrowly controlled, may be released from its trammels, and the farmers of the United States, with all the rest of us, may know how to enrich themselves and enrich the world with the greatest advantage."

Barre to Fall River

The Wilson party left Barre on the special train at 4 o'clock and arrived at Fall River at 8. On the way from Barre big crowds at the Palmer and Framingham stations cheered and applauded, but Gov. Wilson was resting and his secretary declined to disturb him.

At Framingham Michael F. Phelan of Lynn, democratic candidate for congress, Harvey H. Pratt and George Schofield, Congressman Gardner's democratic opponent, boarded Gov. Wilson's private car.

Chairman Riley of the state committee, who dined with the candidate, cheered him by telling him that Massachusetts was his by 20,000 in November.

National Committeeman John W. Coughlin opened the Fall River meeting and introduced Mayor Higgins, who spoke for a few minutes, saying that America today was a nation of unrest because the masses had been denied the guarantee of the constitution.

After applause subsided, Gov. Wilson got on the right side of his big, enthusiastic audience by saying that as soon as he entered the building he knew that he would feel at home surrounded by men and women sitting around like neighbors.

He then took up a discussion of the industrial and labor question. Opening the subject, he said:

"You know that one of the best-governed cities is Glasgow." There was slight applause at the mention of Glasgow.

"I thought I'd strike a Scotchman," laughingly, and the audience enjoyed the sally. "I've got considerable of the blood myself," he added.

Labor's Rights Defended

Gov. Wilson told his hearers the way to get the justice denied them was to elect a democratic president, as the legislative hand of the government was sure to be democratic.

"If you put the third party candidate in you'll undoubtedly have an interesting four years, but how fruitful it would be I wouldn't undertake to predict," raised another laugh.
Gov. Wilson then asserted with emphasis that the trusts were the only business corporations that had beat organized labor. He told how they could do it and the railroads couldn't, because he said a railroad must be run, while industrial trusts can shut up their plants, transferring their orders right to low capital to organize it was right that labor should be permitted to organize. He wanted his audience not to be led astray by the promises of the third party.

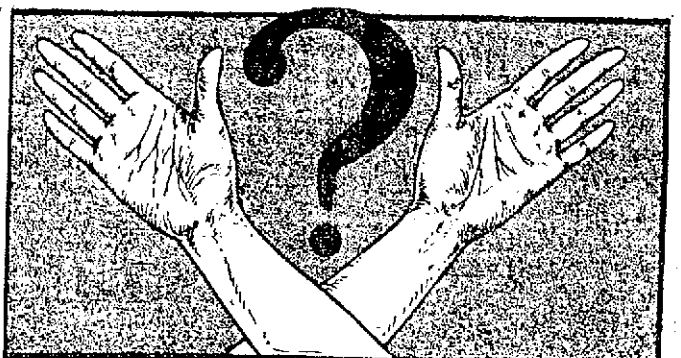

He next told how the democrats promised and how they proposed to deal with capital and labor. He said he believed in government by the people, not government for the people as set forth in the Bull Moose platform. "Down with the bosses," "Up with the organizations," were sentiments cheered. The tariff Dr. Wilson referred to as a "colossal bluff." He pointed out that Lowell paid the lowest wages in Massachusetts, although that city enjoys the same protection under the tariff.

The governor closed his speech at 8.50 and boarded his car for Boston.

WORLD'S PEACE WAS DISCUSSED

At Banquet of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—World-peace, in place at the table. In a twinkling of an eye, the thought in the mind of every speaker at the great banquet last night in the ballroom of the Coppley-Plaza, where President Taft was the guest of the Fifth International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, was that business might prosper, peace that the waste of armies and fleets might be saved, peace through arbitration, peace for the sake of the struggling for existence, every American voiced the hope, every European held forth the belief, that peace is coming, and coming through the broad-minded selfishness of commerce.

It was as though the sentiment had grown steadily all through the sessions of the week, to climax and demand utterance when business had been held aside.

Not that the dinner was unrelieved by humor, the bursts of laughter were even more frequent than the roars of applause, even though Signor Salimoraggi did refer to "this solemn occasion." It ranked among Boston's biggest dinners, since 1908 dinners were around the tables; it was by far the most splendid gathering which ever came here, and for beauty and brilliance it overtopped Boston's experience.

Received By the President
At 5 o'clock the first of the detail of 150 policemen marched into Trinity place and lined the curb on both sides of the street. They were not a minute ahead of the crowd. Many entered the Hotel Conley-Plaza and thought to see Mr. Taft as he entered, but the police marched in also and blocked the foyer. It took a badge to get past them—or at the least, evening dress.

Inside the hotel the state suite, which since Monday has been the headquarters of the congress, had been cleared out. The great information bureau had become a beautiful reception room, with all the long tables and clutter of business gone.

At 6 o'clock there was a faint hand-clapping outside and President Taft entered with Mr. Roosevelt. He went at once to the rooms reserved for him and dressed for the dinner.

By good management practically every one of the dinners was received by the president before 7.15, when he left the reception room and went to his room. The distinguished guests drew closer to the central box where President Taft sat, and the women crowded closer, till when the speaking began they occupied all the balcony except the central opening.

President Taft took a chair by the rail and the men below broke out in cheers which lasted a long time. He sat in profile to the "house," and remained motionless.

President Russell of the Boston chamber of commerce came to the rail and began speaking. He could not be heard, but continued, while his audience hissed for silence. When he was audible he was saying, "However far we have failed in what we wished to for you—"

"No, no!" shouted the men and it became evident that this was to be no formal speech making. The foreigners have taken Boston at its word and have adopted the free-and-easy ways of this country with entire success. They have done their best with the jokes, and all through the evening each point made by a speaker was followed by a hurrying sound which meant translations—and usually by a second round of laughter as the foreigners got the point.

Foreigners Great President
Mr. Russell's first mention of President Taft brought everybody to his feet, with cheering that sounded like a political meeting. The president moved a muscle of his face. Every succeeding reference to him by Mr. Russell brought out the ready applause, and when his grave introduction—"Gentlemen, I present to you the president of the United States"—was given, the audience shouted again with delight. The people leaped to their feet, waving handkerchiefs; they clapped their hands; they shouted like native-born Americans, and wouldn't stop.

In the arches of the right-hand balcony the leader of the orchestra was waving his arms, but no note of the music could be heard.

The president in splendid voice complimented the merchants, and the applause arose again, while the interpreters explained the English exclaiming, after their habit, "Good! Good! Hear, hear!"

The president repeated his recent call for a budget and then said: "You are here to promote trade. The trade is peace." He declared there must be some escape from the increasing burden of the armament. Again the applause answered him instantaneously.

As he ended, Gov. Fess leaned over and shook the president's hand.

The governor was the next man introduced. He read his speech from a manuscript, and all the following speakers, he awakened applause when he expressed the hope that the Panama canal bill will one day be open to all nations on equal terms with American vessels.

"A year from now," said Mr. Russell, introducing Mayor Fitzgerald, "the highest mayor may be sitting in the highest councils in our land." This referred to the mayor's candidacy for the United States senate. It caused President Taft to shake with laughter.

Mayor Fitzgerald was hoarse and spoke with evident discomfort, but his speech was full of the interesting burden of the armament. Again the applause answered him instantaneously.

As he ended, Gov. Fess leaned over and shook the president's hand.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House
A very large and enthusiastic gathering greeted P. Paul Marcel and his company of artists at the Opera House last night. The audience was one of the largest ever seen at this popular house and this was partly due to the well known ability of the actors who on several occasions have performed in this city and partly to the efforts of the general manager of the company, Mr. Earl Rescurre, a local man.

The play presented was "L'Amour Valencien," a three-act comedy from the pen of E. La Roche, a member of the Academie Francaise. The piece is interspersed with rich comedy and was well received by the many spectators who showed their appreciation with their frequent applause.

Mr. Marcel was given an ovation when he made his first appearance before the footlights and again he received himself an artist in his part. Mrs. C. Paul Marcel, George Dumestre, Mrs. Breuille Monville and Marg. Zepher also deserve special mention for their acting is splendid, especially the latter who is a new member of the company and who scored highly in the part of a French wife.

The troupe is composed of some of the best French artists available and is sure to win favor wherever it goes. Last night it was announced that the company would fulfill another engagement in Lowell on Oct. 21, at which time "L'Amour Valencien" will be presented.

"THE SPRING MAID"
Wanda & Lawrence, who are now reckoned among America's most successful and distinguished producers of comic opera, will present their delightful "The Spring Maid" at the Opera House tonight.

"THE COMMON LAW"
So great has been the pressure brought to bear by an insistent public that St. Robert M. Chambers, the author of so many well known novels, has finally decided to allow his big best work, "The Common Law," to be dramatized under his supervision and this new play will appear at the opera house tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Kelley's Theatre

The Bernedici Brothers, appearing at Kelley's, this week, are typical dollar violinists, who blend charmingly with the very latest word in modern music. The scenic investment of their act is surely out of the ordinary. Eddie Ross, blackface funny man, is a strong feature and Gordon Fiddie in "Won By a Leg" offers a swifly moving comedy. Leretta and Paul, a woman and a handsome Irish patter, in a series of hunting pieces, offer something new. And besides these there are four other sterling acts. Good seats for the rest of the week, phone 25.

Merrimack Square Theatre

One of the best bills of many weeks is on tap at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. Its make-up consists of a variety of first class features with a variety series of the best photographs obtainable. Miss Marie Horton who heads the program will hold a reception on the stage tomorrow afternoon at the matinee and all her local friends are invited to attend. She is appearing in a one act drama, "The Price Paid," one of the best sketches seen hereabouts for some time. The other offerings which contribute to the attractiveness of the bill assist greatly to make up a finely balanced entertainment. An excellent program has been arranged for the Sunday concert.

Academy of Music

An appreciative audience saw "The Beau Brummel Trio," Louis Hudson & Co., Devereaux & Pume, and the pictures that make up an excellent bill at the academy this week. Excellent offerings and are bound to please. Tuesday is "Grab Night."

REV. JAS. L. MCGUINNESS

Formerly of Lowell, Assigned to New Parish

Cardinal O'Connell has made the following transfers of curates, to go into effect at once: The Rev. William J. O'Brien, from temporary duty at the cathedral to St. Margaret's church, Campello, as assistant to the Rev. A. J. Hamilton; the Rev. Leo Logan, from St. Joseph's parish, Medford, to St. Edward's, Montello; the Rev. Daniel P. Desmond, from Our Lady of Lourdes church, Beaumont, to St. Joseph's, Medford; the Rev. James L. McGuinness, from St. Margaret's, Brockton, to Our Lady of Lourdes, Beaumont.

Announcement is also made that the annual collection for Catholic charitable institutions will be taken up in all the churches, Sunday, Oct. 6.

Following are the appointments which Cardinal O'Connell has made for the next few weeks:

West Lynn, Sacred Heart, dedication, Sunday, Sept. 29, 10:30 a. m.; St. John's, Seminary, ordination, Monday, Sept. 29, 10 a. m.; Belmont, St. Joseph's, corner stone, Sunday, Oct. 6, 5 p. m.; Somerville, St. Benedict's, dedication, Sunday, Oct. 20, 10:30 a. m.; Lowell, St. Margaret's, dedication, Sunday, Oct. 20, 10:30 a. m.

Rev. Fr. McGuinness, who was transferred from Brockton to Beaumont, is well known in Lowell. He is temporarily stationed at St. Peter's church here, and though in Lowell but a few months he made many friends. He has been in Brockton for about a year and during that time has endeared himself to all his parishioners who greatly regret his transfer.

He was particularly interested in the young men of his parish, and these keenly feel his departure to Beaumont.

Rev. Fr. O'Brien, who will take up the work at St. Margaret's, Campello, is a cousin of Rev. Mr. O'Brien, R. of St. Patrick's in Lowell.

THE BALKAN AGITATION

Discussed by Turkish Foreign Minister

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 27. The Balkan agitation has its center of gravity in Sofia in the opinion of the Turkish foreign minister. In the course of an interview today he said: "I have no reason to doubt the peaceful intentions of the Bulgarian cabinet and while Bulgaria remains peaceful the Balkan states will doubtless likewise remain peaceful. The agitation in Bulgaria occurs because the government of that country will be able to protect her integrity and independence." The foreign minister then gave further assurance of the Porte's determination to introduce reforms in all parts of the empire and said foreign advisers would be engaged for the reorganization of the central and provincial administrations.

THE ANNUAL FAIR

Held at Groton and There Was a Large Attendance and a Fine Display

The annual fair was held at Groton yesterday and as usual there was a large attendance. There was an unusual display of vegetables and fruit as well as cots and poultry. The weather conditions were excellent and all present enjoyed themselves in a thorough manner.

One of the events of the day was a motorcycle race between Edward Gahlin, East Groton, and Earl Steeper of West Groton and was won by Steeper.

LINEN SHOWER

Was Tendered Miss Elizabeth Cranna By Friends at Her Home in Cross Street

Miss Elizabeth Cranna was tendered a linen shower Tuesday evening at her home in Cross street when about 50 of her friends called and presented her beautiful and useful articles of linen. Although taken completely by surprise, Miss Cranna responded and expressed her thanks in a manner that was very pleasing. A program of music, including songs by Mrs. McGurney, Misses May Connors, Elizabeth Murphy, May Donovan and May Fitzgerald was enjoyed and afterwards a buffet lunch was served by Mrs. M. Boddy, Mrs. E. Cronin, and Mrs. M. Hiscroft. The members of the party left at a late hour, after wishing the bride-elect the greatest happiness for the future.

A LONG DIVORCE FIGHT

Ends in Dr. Heim's Getting a Decree

BOSTON, Sept. 27. Judge Hardy in the superior court yesterday dismissed all the exceptions which were filed by counsel for Mrs. Irma Wright Heim, noted beauty and singer, to the decree for divorce which last March was granted her husband, Dr. Henry Francis Heim, former dentist to the King of Italy.

This marks the end of one of the most sensational divorce cases which has been tried in Suffolk county in recent years. Dr. Heim will receive his permanent decree of divorce Monday, a decree nisi having been granted March 23 by Judge Quinn.

Dr. Heim alleged in his suit that his wife had misbehaved with 22-year-old Arturo Targoni, had figured in a wine revel, in an exciting ride in a milk cart, and other escapades.

Mrs. Heim filed a cross libel, charging her husband with cruel and abusive treatment. She is at present living with her mother in New York.

During the trial large crowds were drawn to Judge Quinn's court by the reputation of the principals and by the remarkable character of the testimony in regard to the sobriety of Mrs. Heim. Mrs. Heim denied the charges of intoxication and one point in her testimony which provoked much amused attention was that the only time she had been in the Heim home in Florence, Italy, was when which cost $9 a barrel.

Mrs. Heim created an impression in court by her striking appearance and fashionable garb. She appeared in a new dress nearly every day of the trial. While the case was pending she received $5 a month alimony by order of the court. She contested the case bitterly and it was only after a legal battle that George A. Perkins, attorney for Dr. Heim, secured the dismissal of her exceptions to the decree of divorce.

DEAD MAN ELECTED
Late John E. Symonds of Lynn, chosen to office by Knights of the Ancient

Essenic Order

LYNN, Sept. 27.—Information reached here yesterday that John E. Symonds, a former business man of Lynn, had been elected to the office of junior grand of the supreme council of the Knights of the Ancient Essenic Order in Lynn.

Mr. Symonds, one of the prominent members of the order in the eastern part of the country, died in his home May 26, 1911. He was also a member of the United Workmen and was a past Master Workman of Massachusetts and a member of Mystic Lodge of Lynn.

His wife, who was playing at the doorway, stepped over his body. He then entered his home, closed the door, and shot himself in the temple. Two hours later he died in the hospital where his wife lies in a critical condition with the two children, less seriously injured, in an adjoining ward.

The shooting took place in front of the house on the corner of West Street and a quarter of the corner of which was the residence of a man named John E. Symonds who was elected to the domestic relations court.

Standing on the lower steps of the house, he fired four times at his wife as she stood on the balcony. One bullet went through her head and the others struck her arms and legs. Her husband, who was also a member of the order, was also injured.

THE ROCHESTER FAIR

Large Attendance on the Third Day

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The attendance at the Rochester Fair yesterday, the third day, was one of the largest in its history, and everybody left the grounds last night satisfied, though it would have given thousands pleasure to see an assembly of the kind which was witnessed on the grounds yesterday.

The aviator, Philip W. Page, declared that the grounds here are the best in the world for any he has ever tried. He made each time for the opening in the trees at the east end of the grandstand and cleared the obstruction by only a narrow margin. The stage program was finely rendered and there was exciting racing.

The work of building the exhibits commenced yesterday and will be completed today, when the fair will open. Automobile day will be observed today. There will be a street parade of decorated automobiles with prizes for the best decorated car and the worst-looking machine. An automobile show will be held at Cold Spring Park in the afternoon.

CHIEF HOSMER RETURNS HOME

He Attended the Convention of Fire Engineers at Denver

Chief Edward S. Hosmer of the Lowell fire department, and his wife, returned home yesterday after attending the 40th annual convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers at Denver, Col., on Sept. 17, 18, 19 and 20.

The chief stated to a representative of the Sun that he had an excellent time and every opportunity to enjoy himself was afforded him, but said: "They can say what they want about going out west and grow up with the country, but the east is good enough for me."

The convention started on Tuesday, the 17th, when a parade was held and the business meeting was started. In the afternoon a business session was held and the ladies who accompanied the delegates were given a tour of the city.

On Wednesday practical tests of the fire apparatus were held and the ladies were given an automobile ride to Mt. Morrison and return under the auspices of the Denver Motor club. Illuminated fire runs, exhibition drills on the training tower were also held and in the evening while the ladies attended theatres the chiefs attended a smoker at the Albany hotel.

On Thursday a trip was made up Moffat road and upon the return trip a business session was held at the Albany hotel.

There was something doing on Friday for it was the last day of the convention and the ladies had a chance to make shopping trips and at two o'clock in the afternoon there was another exhibition of the training tower. At eight o'clock that night the illuminated parade of fire apparatus through the business streets in the center of the city attracted the attention of thousands of people.

Friday afternoon the chief and his wife and other members of the visiting party enjoyed a trip to Colorado Springs. During the stay in Denver, Chief Hosmer and others visited Cripple Creek and the Elkhorn mine. The chief made a careful examination of the Portland mine at Cripple Creek and has as a souvenir a piece of ore which was taken out of the mine.

In speaking about the fire department in Denver, Chief Hosmer said that despite the fact that the population of Denver is about double that of Lowell he considered the local department superior to that of Denver. When asked why he thought so, he stated to the writer that in Denver there was an average of about four men to one company and on many occasions when it was a man's day off, the department was crippled.

PRICE OF MILK

To Be Made Uniform in This Section—New Rate Goes Into Effect in October

The members of the Farmers' Protective association were scheduled to meet at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Odd Fellows' hall, but up to a late hour a sufficient number of them had not appeared. The purpose of the gathering was to discuss the milk question.

At present the cream producers are receiving 40 cents per can and it is the intention of the association to make this price uniform throughout the towns in the vicinity of this city. The new price will go into effect on the first of October.

SHOT TWO BARMAIDS ON CHARGE OF ASSAULT

American Named Titus Two Men Fined in Police Court Today

LONDON, Sept. 27.—A so-called American shot and seriously wounded four persons with a revolver today and for a time caused a semi-panic in the West End. The man, whose name is Titus and who claims citizenship of the United States but speaks English poorly, had a dispute with a barmaid of a hotel where he was staying in the Tottenham court road. He drew a revolver and shot her and a second barmaid and then rushed to the street. On the way out he shot down two men who tried to stop him and also fired at a third man. He was finally overpowered by a passerby and arrested.

Fire in Restaurant

A telephone alarm at 3.55 o'clock yesterday summoned a portion of the fire department to Portek's restaurant, formerly Peve's restaurant, in Central street, near Prescott street. The fire was in the kitchen and was quickly extinguished by the chemical.

FACE FULL OF RED PIMPLES

And Blackheads. On Both Sides of Nose. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Blackheads Gone. Pimples Dried Up and Disappeared.

53 Kendall St., Boston, Mass.—"My face was full of blackheads and red pimples which itched. They were on both sides of my nose. My nose was all sore and a regular scab came on it because I was always trying to do something for it, as when I went out everyone would say, 'Look at your nose. Why don't you do something for it?' I used cold cream and then someone told me to use Cuticura, but nothing did me any good until a body told me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I used the Cuticura Ointment at night, and when I got up in the morning I washed my face with Cuticura Soap and hot water, as hot as I could bear it. It was only three days when you could see a great improvement in my face. My blackheads are all gone, and my face is fine. The pimples just seemed to dry up and have all disappeared."

"I had some kind of a rash come out on my arms and all I did was to apply Cuticura Ointment at night and in the morning and it disappeared in about a week." (Signed) Miss Mary E. Fortuna, Dec. 20, 1911.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

The Opening Game With Nashua Tomorrow

When a slice off one of Samuel Cohen's shins was used to repair the other, Hinchbunks have been straightened and curvature of the spine relieved by bones from a foreign body, usually one recently dead. The novelty in yesterday's case is that the patient furnished the bone from his own body. His doctors feel certain it will work. Cohen is 32 and lives at 736 Park avenue, Brooklyn. A horse kicked him 15 weeks ago and broke his left leg between the knee and ankle. He stayed in Bellevue two months and then went home with his leg in plaster. On Sept. 10 he returned to the hospital. The broken bones had to be fixed to unite. As X-ray view showed the bones in good position, Dr. Frederick H. Albee, one of the visiting surgeons and a specialist in bone grafting, examined Cohen and decided to bridge the fracture with bone from the right shin.

Knowing the operation was novel Cohen asked leave to look on. He said he felt sure he had nerve enough. The doctors did not agree with him and put him under ether.

According to the testimony offered Whitman and McLean are ice men and met Monday afternoon while delivering ice in a saloon in Liberty square they got into an argument with Rafferty and Whitman gave him a pair of black eyes.

Rafferty testified that he went into the saloon to get a drink of whiskey because he was suffering from cramps. About 10 minutes after having partaken of the first drink he took another and later on he took a third. Then he said the three defendants' struck him, but he denied that he said he was the "champion fighter of Brooks street." Michael Casserly, a bartender, said he tried to stop the fight, but all he knew was that there were a lot of people all over the floor. Michael Daly, Patrick Bowler and Jeremiah Foley, who were also present, knew but little about the affair.

Whitman testified that he was a driver of an ice wagon and went into the saloon to ascertain if any ice was needed. While there he had one drink and was talking to another man when Rafferty "batted in."

"I told him to shut his mouth or I would close it for him. He then struck me and I struck him two blows in the face."

PELHAM FAIR A GREAT SUCCESS

Excellent Exhibits, Enjoyable Attractions, Baby Show and Other Big Features

A real good, old fashioned country fair, with the fortune wheel, ring toss games and African dodger, did to speak of many delightful exhibitions. Is the best general description that can be given of the Pelham grange fair which took place in the town of Pelham yesterday.

Naturally being a town event, it had no large fair grounds with the customary high board fence, grandstand and race track. It did, however, have a first rate time in store for the 700 or more people who came from the surrounding towns and cities to attend, and what is more, it was characterized by some of the finest displays of fruit, vegetables, fancy work, poultry, etc., that have been seen even at any of the larger fairs.

The grange had at their disposal Pilgrim hall, a large tent and the village streets. Just across the road, on the porch of the library, the Lowell Colonist orchestra took their stand and furnished lively music for the gathering throughout the day. The individual members rendered various instrumental and vocal solos. On the right of the large tent was the usual African dodger. In this game, instead of the usual harmless stuffed leather balls, apples were used and patrons were given three shots for a nickel, and if apple juice benefited as a hair tonic, that colored gentleman should have a wonderful crop of wool in a day or two, for the spectators displayed exceptional ability as marksmen.

Ring Toss Game

Then there was the ring toss game. You get a certain number of wooden rings for a nickel and toss these at BELFAST, Ire., Sept. 27.—The policy of the unionist party in regard to the home rule bill is to be announced tonight at a great meeting of Orangemen. Tomorrow the men of Ulster will follow this by signing a solemn league and a covenant not to submit to the government's bill conferring a scheme of self-government on Ireland.

Lord Lansdowne, who like other official heads of the unionist party heretofore has not taken any part in the great demonstrations which have been held in the province of Ulster, has written a letter which is to be read tonight to the assembled Ulster men and which states clearly the policy of the unionist party.

The meeting is to be held in Ulster hall, the scene of many momentous protests against home rule, and indications are not lacking that the gathering will be unparalleled in point of attendance and importance. Sir Edward Carson and other unionist leaders who have just returned from a series of demonstrations throughout the province, will speak.

THE LOCAL MILLINERY OPENINGS

Attracted a Very Large Number of Women to the Stores
This Afternoon

Today and tomorrow the women of Lowell will have an opportunity to witness excellent displays of millinery for the annual fall openings are being held in the different establishments in this city. Below will be found a description of some of the attractive features in the different establishments:

At Miss Genevieve Roarke's

Miss Roarke's millinery opening will take place today and tomorrow and her parlors are filled with rare, and we might say ultra fashionable millinery. The lovers of fashionable millinery find this shop a most interesting place to visit. Miss Roarke's conception and knowledge of the millinery art is already established and very little comment is necessary. Her display of beautiful hats and bonnets are copies from the best houses in London and Paris as well as this country, and with her own original ideas make the exhibit well worthy of any lady's inspection. A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies to visit this attractive shop which will convince the customer that the styles are unusual and unlike those shown elsewhere. To say that everything is most beautiful is putting it very mildly. Should you not find just what you like, you will always find that she is ready, willing and anxious to assist you in selecting just what would be most becoming. There is no trouble in getting to her establishment, simply call at the Chaffoux building, take the elevator and you are landed in an instant at her Hat Shop.

Rose Jordan Hartford

Mrs. Hartford's millinery display is on in full force, and the ladies of the city and suburbs are out in great numbers in anticipation of the beautiful display of fall and winter millinery exhibited by Mrs. Hartford. This store has always been one of the most attractive in our city, and her very large patronage during the last seasons have proved that fact. The fashionably dressed ladies of the city make it a point to select their millinery from her popular establishment. Her display windows are a big attraction in themselves, beautifully arranged for inspection. There can be found the latest in millinery designed from pattern hats, also all that is fashionable in the millinery world. She cordially invites everybody to call whether they desire to purchase or not. The exhibit is worth going a great distance to see and will continue throughout the rest of the week. Don't fail to attend for you will travel far before you witness a display equal to that which she has prepared for your inspection.

Mrs. Van Hise

Mrs. A. Van Hise's millinery parlor at 46 Bellevue street, though somewhat removed from the busy trading center of the city, is a place where many fashionable ladies always go to select, and have their millinery made to order. Mrs. Van Hise knows the business thoroughly, and she has a generous portion of the millinery trade. Any lady wishing to get choice millinery at moderate prices will make no mistake by calling at this up-to-date milliner's residence.

Margaret M. Pike

Miss Pike, who has her quarters at 40 Kirk street, next to the Lowell High school, has a very pretty display. Miss Pike is one of the best known and most stylish milliners in our city having for several years been at the head of some of the largest millinery establishments in the city. She was for the past three seasons located in the Chaffoux building, and this is the first public display in her new quarters. Miss Pike makes a specialty of creating her own designs, and she always does it to the satisfaction of her patrons. A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Lowell to call and inspect the display in her new quarters where they will cheerfully be shown some of the very best designs in millinery. The exhibit continues throughout the week.

Gertrude B. Allen

Gertrude B. Allen is not in the millinery business but in the embroidery and art work business, which is closely allied to the millinery business. She is located in the Chaffoux building, 77 Central street, and on the same floor with Miss Genevieve A. Roarke, the milliner. Miss Allen will be pleased to have the ladies call and see the beautiful display of embroidery and art work. Take the elevator.

The Fashion

This ever popular millinery establishment made a very beautiful display both in their window and in the interior of their store with a very choice and stylish autumn and winter millinery display and their store was visited by a constant stream of admiring ladies who, judging from the many complimentary remarks made, thought that the exhibit here was one of the best to be seen in the city. These regular millinery parlors have always been noted for the fine line of mourning goods which is carried in conjunction with other lines of fashionable millinery. The Fashion is under the management of Miss Margaret Harrington, and she is assisted by a number of expert milliners. The display was never more beautiful than it is this year. Don't fail to call when you are out inspecting, as you are cordially welcome.

Hard & Garland

While located on the second floor in the Neapoli building, corner of John and Merrimack streets, these beautiful parlors are so well known that they receive a generous share of the public patronage as the goods are more of the made-to-order style, and hundreds of ladies find just what they want in material, frames and shapes. They make a specialty of trimming hats, and it makes no difference where the hat is bought, or how cheap is the shape their knowledge of the millinery art enables them to turn over to their customer a fashionably trimmed and rich looking hat. The ladies are invited to inspect their goods. The opening will continue throughout today and tomorrow.

Miss Katherine A. Tancred

Miss Tancred, on the second floor of the Wyman's Exchange building has a very pretty display in fashionable millinery. Her parlors are well worth inspection. Miss Tancred is an expert in the millinery art at designing, and has years of experience, having been in full charge of the Alex. Abels establishment. She knows how to do things in millinery work that has made her one of the most popular and leading milliners of the city. Call and see the display, and you will find your time profitably spent. The opening will continue throughout the week.

Ostroff & Sousa

Ostroff & Sousa of Gorham street have this season a beautiful millinery display, which is most pleasing to the eye. The ladies who are looking for seasonable fall and winter millinery will find the style and fashion to suit them at this well stocked house, and they will find that the most interesting and pleasing part of the visit is the prices will fit almost any lady's purse. Be sure and visit their store, as all are cordially invited.

Rose G. Caisse

Miss Rose G. Caisse, of 53 Central street, Central block, never fails to have a very large and carefully selected stock of furs. She is the leading furrier of the city, and is an expert at her business. You will make no mistake if you take time enough to inspect her beautiful line of furs, and she can always give you some valuable information as to what can be done in the alteration of furs. Today and tomorrow are opening days.

Head & Shaw

This well known firm, located on John street, had their formal opening last week, but always being full of enterprise and in the fashionable swim have decided to continue the exhibit this week. In the window display and shop may be seen beautiful hats and bonnets, among them being imported pattern hats. The price is one of the things that makes this millinery establishment one of the best patronized in Lowell. If you were unable to get around last week, don't lose the opportunity this week. You will be pleased if you call.

Kittie Blennerhassett

Miss Blennerhassett has her millinery parlors in the Central block, and has become permanently established in her present quarters, by her knowledge of the business and her courteous treatment of her patrons at all times. She is a great favorite among the fashionably dressed ladies of our city, and she can count on the very large patronage which she has always received. Her specially like some of the other milliners, is more in the nature and character of made to order hats, although she always has a very pretty exhibit of the latest pattern hats. If you desire to see the exhibit take the elevator. Her millinery opening continues throughout the week.

Lena Lalumiere

Miss Lalumiere's, in the Old City Hall building, 228 Merrimack street, is a place that never fails to attract the throngs of ladies who are out inspecting the millinery displays, and there are few milliners who have the knack of arranging beautiful creations in the milliners' art as does Miss Lalumiere. Her display rooms are certainly extraordinary, and the general appearance is such as to command the admiration of all of her visitors. Miss Lalumiere has the most stylish creations of Paris, London and New York designs in autumn and winter styles, and you can get just what you desire. If you are looking for something stylish. The opening days are today and tomorrow. All ladies are invited to attend.

New York Cloak and Suit Store

The New York Cloak and Suit store on John street is the centre of attraction in our city today. This large establishment has just undergone a wonderful transformation in general appearance. The store has been enlarged by adding more than double its usual space. The second floor is furnished for a fitting and display room of their very beautiful stock of autumn and winter clothing, and there is not a finer appointed cloak and suit establishment in New England than that of the New York Cloak and Suit store. The window display is nothing short of a revelation to the ladies who admire the latest and most up-to-date in everything of this season's wearing apparel. The windows are most beautifully decorated with autumn foliage, and in each window there are two mammoth jardiniere filled with the choicest autumn cut flowers, and the effect is certainly beautiful. But that is not all, for there is a variety of gowns displayed that are of the very latest design, beautiful in appearance, stylish and are masterpieces of the dressmakers' art, and worthy of the inspection of customers. There are opera cloaks and capes and in short everything that would go to supply the wants of people of generous means. The day is past when people must go to Boston to get a beautiful costume or anything that would go to make up the best dressed lady in the land.

The interior of the store on the first floor is in keeping with the magnificent window display, and for the use and comfort of the ladies while making the tour of inspection on the different floors, this progressive business house has installed an elevator.

Mr. Emmott, the manager, is receiving many compliments for the rich and rare treat that he has prepared for the ladies, and he richly deserves all the pleasant things that are said about him during the opening. It would be more space than we can devote to attempt to describe any particular costume, but all are cordially invited to attend, whether they desire to purchase or not, and the corps of courteous ladies in attendance will esteem it a favor to show the patrons anything that they may wish to inspect.

TAFT PEOPLE

May Press Litigation Over Right of Roosevelt Election To Remain On Republican Ticket

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Intention on the part of attorneys for the Kansas Taft electors to press the litigation over the right of Roosevelt men to remain on the republican electoral ticket was indicated here today despite reports that a compromise had been reached. The attorneys have had printed in the supreme court a transcript of the record in the case brought to enjoin county clerks from printing the names of Roosevelt men on the ticket at the recent Kansas primaries.

The practice is not to print the transcript unless the case is to be urged before the court for decision.

Newest among models in long coats is the very practical looking affair seen in one of the cuts. It is made of tan colored Scotch worsted. Three rows of broad crossing each shoulder and running to the feet back and front emphasize the long slender silhouette. Perfect freedom is given to the arms of this by exceptionally long armholes partially overlapping the large and straight sleeves which are sewed into a waistcoat of matching material worn under the coat for additional warmth. The hat of tan rubberized silk is trimmed with an uncurled fancy aiglet and the buttoned boots are tan leather that is imitations to dampness. This leather keeps its polish by the simple means of a soap and water bath.

bridge bag of moire swings from heavy rose silk cordage hangers intended to attach the receptacle to the wearer's girdle while playing cards. The bag, which is mounted on a skeleton frame of dull gold, is decorated on one side with medallions of rose enamel, gold enameled and flanked by fresh water pearls, and on the other side with a tiny watch surrounded by a wreath of enamel and beads. Inside the bag are compartments for bills, coins and the usual vanity articles.

The shodded tunic, opening over a skirt of contrasting material, is a feature of the fall fashions, and some of the French couturiers have specially favored this effect. The suit shown in one of the pictures is of dark blue cloth, and the tunic opens over a matching skirt of the same shade. The coat combines a straight cutaway suggestion, the fronts being slashed away, while the lines at side and back are slender and straight. This blue cloth suit has touches of white embroidery and a collar of white voile lace in combination with narrow satin pipings. It is considered smart.

Here is a stunning example of the veil of the moment. Like two-thirds of the face veillings brought out for autumn use, its mesh, though of very fineness, is well covered with a hand run pattern of marching line and a bordering that is exceedingly wide, particularly at the ends. The picture shows a favorable arrangement of veils for autumn, for in nearly every case the lovely cobwebby necessities are allowed to float apparently at will, but in reality they are securely pinned, as is this one, to both the trim and the crown of the hat.

An attractive combination of two colors is shown in this separate blouse of blue net, dotted with white pin dots and sprinkled here and there with large coin spots of deep blue satin. This material is posed over white satin with a wide plait at the shoulder line. This aids in giving the necessary fullness over the bust. The sleeves, finished with upturned frills of lievre lace, have undersleeves of the same. The neck is cut out in a V over a high collared chemise of lace and the fronts are finished with a double frill of lace centered with a band of green satin on which are posed tiny blue buttons set very close together.

every dressmaker's doing it"—that is, making plaits in all sorts of possible and impossible parts of a gown. The fall skirt particularly lends itself to this new sartorial art, and one of the illustrations shows a full fledged offspring of the latest plaited notion. The entire skirt is formed of narrow box plaits that do not add an inch to the slim silhouette. The secret of this apparent slenderness is to be found in snags on the underside of the skirt that hold the plaits in place. The material used in this instance is silk, which is the happiest medium for the new plaited expression.

MAN JILTED AT ALTAR

Bride Changed Mind and Man Collapsed

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—Everything was in readiness for the marriage of Arthur D. Hanson and Miss Ada L. Powers, formerly of Brooklyn, at the Chapel Square hotel last night, when the bride changed her mind.

The groom was at the altar, the minister was standing to, back in hand, when the father of the bride rushed in and whispered to the "happy man" to "elect."

"She has changed her mind," he said.

Thereupon the groom retired.

The wedding celebration grew cold while the guests looked on, the groom, finally a doctor was summoned.

It was only after the doctor had worked at top speed and used heroic measures that Hanson was brought back to some semblance of life. Meanwhile, the waiters in the private dining room hired by the groom, had been told that their services were no longer needed, and departed, wondering.

Miss Powers, daughter of William H. Powers, formerly lived at 275 Commonwealth avenue, Brooklyn, but a newspaper reporter who told last night that the family had moved to a new home in the city, said that the bride's father is now in the city, and is expected to be in the city in a few days.

EIGHT HOURS' BATTLE

Before Campa Captured Town of Altar

NOGALIES, Arizona, Sept. 25.—The first details of United Campa's operations in the Altar district of Mexico were brought here last night by F. E. Hawksworth of Los Angeles, in charge of a platoon in the Las Palomas band. The capture of the town of Altar by Campa was effected after a battle lasting eight hours, according to Hawksworth. Campa lost 12 killed and wounded. Hawksworth was compelled to drive his automobile 150 miles with several of Campa's wounded men and some rifles, Campa enforcing his demand for speed by striking the American in the face with a quirt.

After the rebels attacked Altar they went to Cuahora, 12 miles west, which was taken without resistance and looted. Hawksworth was compelled to go with the main party under command of Lieut. Enciso. At the outskirts of Beludito they learned that the federals were guarding that town and the rebels made a night trip to the Sierra Colorado mine.

Campa, according to the American, made a violent anti-American speech at Plaza and at Altar and said he would kill Americans to bring about intervention.

WAS KILLED BY AN ELEVATOR

Dr. Leonard W. Williams of the Harvard Medical School Caught in Lift

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Dr. Leonard W. Williams, instructor of comparative anatomy at the Harvard medical school, was crushed to death yesterday afternoon in an elevator in building B of the medical school group of structures at 240 Longwood avenue, Roxbury.

Dr. Williams' laboratory is in the building where he met his death. He was riding in the lift used by professors, instructors and employees, operated by the person using it, and standing near the exit of the car, struck his head against the wall of the shaft, the blow making him unconscious.

He was alone in the elevator at the time and the car without a restraining hand continued to move up until his head and body became wedged between the elevator and the wall of the shaft, stopping the car.

The accident happened between 2:45 and 3 o'clock and the body was discovered about 15 minutes later by Patrick O'Brien, an employee, who, intending to use the car, noticed a pool of blood on the floor and looking up saw the head of the instructor protruding from the car. Medical Examiner Magrath, who knew the physician, helped remove the body.

The elevator is the kind commonly used to carry freight and is not used by the students.

Dr. Williams was born at Muskogee, Ok., July 8, 1875, of a family noted for its activities in the missionary field. His grandfather, Dr. Samuel A. Worcester, was known as the "Apostle to the Cherokee Indians," being the first to translate the Bible into the Cherokee tongue. His father, Mason F. Williams, was a pioneer physician in Oklahoma.

From early childhood Dr. Williams took a deep interest in all forms of animal life and in the pursuit of such studies he received the degree of A. M. from Princeton in 1899 and of Ph. D. from Brown in 1901. Shortly after his appointment as assistant professor in the latter university he began his investigations of marine life which resulted in his becoming widely known in that field. He published the first detailed and satisfactory account of the mechanism of the lobster's stomach. Later, from the American Museum, he made a thorough study of the anatomy of the common squid, the animal most used for bait in trawling.

In 1899 Dr. Williams was appointed instructor in comparative anatomy at the Harvard Medical School, becoming a member of its faculty soon afterwards. He was a member of many scientific societies and was a councillor of the Boston Society of Natural History. He is survived by a widow and two young children. Mrs. Williams is a daughter of the late Prof. Benjamin Clarke of Brown University.

COMPLAINTS ARE HEARD

By Chairman Prouty on Freight Delays

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—The New York New Haven & Hartford and Boston & Maine railroads opened their side of the case yesterday when Chairman Charles A. Prouty of the Interstate Commerce commission resumed the hearing of complaints made against these roads by shippers and business organizations, in the United States circuit court room at the Federal building.

Vice Pres. Edward G. Buckland of the New Haven called General Supt. C. R. Pollock of the New Haven to describe the system of freight transportation on his lines, and later W. C. Kendall, superintendent of transportation of the Boston & Maine, testified along similar lines in regard to his road. By the use of prepared maps, both railroad men told of improved freight service due to the abolishment of several transfer points. The chief trouble has come at these points in the past. Mr. Pollock stated that the average time saved was 12 hours in and out of each yard.

With the intention of showing that it would be to the advantage of the shipping public that the New Haven acquire the Boston & Maine outright Mr. Buckland asked, "Is it true, under present conditions, that labor complications prevent interchange of crews, on trains between the two railroads?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Pollock. "If a Boston & Maine crew is on the New Haven road and that train picks up or drops freight, our arrangements with our trainmen make it necessary that we equalize the condition."

Louis D. Brandeis, representing the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, referred to a complaint by a Nashua, N. H., firm regarding four consecutive shipments from that city to Derby, Conn. The time consumed was respectively 8, 10, 12 and 10 days.

Mr. Brandeis tried to get an explanation of these delays from Mr. Pollock, but the latter said: "I wouldn't attempt to give any explanation until I had investigated. We know that our system, if carried out, will not permit anything of that sort. Mr. Braideis asked Mr. Kendall if he had any figures as to economy to the railroad since the new system has been in effect, but the B. & M. superintendent had none.

After getting Mr. Kendall to say that it should take two days to ship from Newmarket to Springfield or Worcester, Robert Homans, representing the Boston chamber of commerce, told of shipments of pianos that consumed from three to seven days.

Complaints of service on the New England lines were made by Albert Chandler, traffic manager for the Springfield board of trade; Fred M. Putnam of Nashua, N. H.; Charles A. Ramage of Monroe Bridge and W. E. Bosworth of Brockton.

Pres. R. J. Alley of the Commercial Travelers' Eastern Association, on behalf of his organization, asked that one million be good on the New Haven, Boston & Maine, and Maine Central roads. William E. Rand of Boston complained of poor passenger service on the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine and was seconded by J. B. Cutter of Boston.

Distribution of American Colleges
The original purpose of American colleges was mainly to train men for the ministry; but so it is no longer. Harvard, founded chiefly to educate clergymen, now gives in this profession barely 2 per cent. of her graduates; Yale, begun under similar impulses, now contribute a meager 3 per cent. This and other interesting changes in the professions favored by college graduates are described in a bulletin by Bailey B. Burrill on "Professional Distribution of University and College Graduates," just issued by the United States Bureau of Education.

The decline in the numbers going into the ministry has been accompanied by a rise in the professions of teaching, law, and business. All three have been more or less consistent gainers at the expense of the ministry.

When the older colleges were established boys who expected to be the business men of the community rarely gave much thought to "higher education." That was for the "learned professions," most often, in the early years, the men with business careers ahead of them have taken advantage of college opportunities.

At Harvard the ministry yielded the leadership to law after the Revolutionary war, and law remained the dominant profession of Harvard graduates until 1880, when business took the lead. At Yale the ministry competed successfully with law until after the middle of the nineteenth century, when law took the ascendancy and kept it until 1895, being then displaced by business. At the University of Pennsylvania one-fourth of the graduates used to go into the ministry; now about one-fifthth do so. Oberlin college, founded with strong denominational tendencies, shows the same story of the decline in numbers of men going into the ministry. At the University of Michigan, out of an army of over 15,000 graduates, only 188 have become ministers.

Aside from their contributions to the clergy, most of the universities and colleges have had favorite professions. At Columbia, Dartmouth and Michigan, for instance, it is law; at Pennsylvania it is medicine; at Oberlin, Wisconsin, and many others, particularly the educational institutions, it is teaching; while a few of the universities, Brown, for example, have shown an impartial spirit, dividing up their strength almost equally among four leading professions.

A final summary of 27 representative colleges—especially in America—shows that teaching is now the dominant profession of college graduates, with 25 per cent.

business takes 20 per cent.; law, which took one-third of all the graduates at the beginning of the nineteenth century, now claims but 15 per cent.; medicine takes between 5 and 7 per cent., and seems to be slightly on the decline; engineering is slowly going up, but still takes only 3 or 4 per cent.; while the ministry, with its present 5 or 6 per cent. of the total, has reached the lowest mark for that profession in the two and a half centuries of American college history.

INTRODUCING A NEW TREATMENT

Conservative Claims, Backed By Facts and Reason, More Effective Than Boastful Argument.

Many meritorious products now-a-days fail to become popular because of the extravagant claims of merit. The time is past for over-statements in advertising. People are constantly becoming more cautious and discriminating—they weigh and dissect most propositions before accepting.

A notable instance of successful conservative advertising has recently been demonstrated in this city.

The English Pharmaceutical Laboratories, Inc., some time ago asked the Lowell druggists to aid them in introducing a non-secret, scientific method of treating hemorrhoids.

When these druggists were shown the prescriptions on each package and were told of the dignified advertising campaign proposed, most all agreed to help in the distribution. They saw at once that they could recommend and in fact, guarantee, this unique method of treatment.

A pamphlet, giving the causes and effects of hemorrhoids, can be obtained at most any drug store in Lowell or vicinity. It is an excellent treatise on the subject and should be read by all who are afflicted.

The campaign in Lowell is said to be the most encouraging. Even physicians are recommending the "English" remedies, as they recognize from the prescription printed on each package that they possess unusual merit. Ask your Druggist. Ask your Physician.

JOB E. HEDGES WAS NOMINATED

He Was the Choice of New York Republicans for Governor on the Third Ballot

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Job E. Hedges of New York was nominated as republican candidate for governor of New York today. Three ballots were taken.

Hedges led from the first and when the third ballot showed him steadily gaining strength the delegates flocked to him so fast that the tally clerk could not keep the record. Before the vote could be announced a motion to make the nomination unanimous was put and carried with a roar of enthusiasm.

The delegates picked Hedges from a list of 11 candidates placed before them today after days of fruitless effort to combine outside the convention hall upon a man who might not enough votes to nominate on the first ballot.

James W. Wadsworth, Jr., the young former speaker of the assembly, gave the shout for the candidate brought him to the stage, where he delivered a short speech that set the convention on fire with enthusiasm. This continued when speaker Merritt of the assembly nominated James W. Wadsworth, Jr., for lieutenant governor. The proposal of Mr. Wadsworth's name for second place from this source was a surprise, for it was taken to mean that Hedges' defeated rival would accept.

In his speech accepting the nomination Mr. Hedges declared that "if his health kept good there would be no nomination in the campaign and when it is over they will know that you and I were there."

He testified that the Dakota claimant to the name and estate of the missing Lantier Blake Russell of Melrose told him before the death of the older Russell, some years ago, that he, the claimant, was Dan Russell of Melrose. Mr. Moore placed the time between the years 1901 and 1904.

"THE WORLD IN BALTIMORE"

Bethany House and Native, Mohammedan Scene

FOLLOWING the footsteps of nations and cities that have done successful advertising with expositions, the Christian Church has evolved an exposition suited to its needs—an exposition to exploit great enterprises of Christian Missions in all parts of the world. Unlike the usual type of "World's Fair," these church expositions are not only religious, but are educational. They are called "Missionary Expositions" and they have been designed to show to the people of the Christian world the gigantic strides made by missionaries in far-off countries.

The Missionary exposition originated in England, where the scenic features were greatly developed, but as soon as Americans took hold of the idea this phase was extended so that the great missionary exposition that is being planned for presentation in the different cities of the United States is a reproduction of the scenic attractiveness of every land and clime. Two of these expositions have thus far been held in the United States, the "World in Boston" in the spring of 1911 and the "World in Cincinnati" in the spring of 1912. The "World in Baltimore" will be the third and it will be conducted from October 23 to November 30. Chicago has asked for the exposition for next year and Pittsburghers are discussing the holding of one after Chicago.

These expositions are conducted by the Missionary Education Movement, and in the presentation of the accomplishments of the missionaries in the field by means of these expositions it has been planned to carry the work into every large city in this country. Those who have seen "Midway" of "World's Fairs" can most readily comprehend the character of these World Expositions. These "Midways" are made up of reproductions of scenery and native life in the various parts of the world and are populated by natives. In the World Expositions, however, while there are reproductions of native life and scenery, the natives are impersonated by the local church people.

The great feature of these expositions is the Pageant of Darkness and Light. In the public mind Pageants are great spectacular pageants, but this particular pageant is presented on the stage with all the accessories of beautiful scenery, costumes and lighting effect. In general makeup and in the words and music, it is closely allied to grand opera.

Instead of acts there are episodes. Episode 1 represents the North. The scene is an Indian camp in the far Northwest. In the foreground, the braves are lounging around the fire, and the women are busy working. In the background are the wigwams. The chief and his squaw are grieving over the loss of their little daughter who strayed from the camp three days before. To the camp comes a band of Eskimos to trade. The Medicine Man invites the braves to kill the traders and take their goods. Just as they are about to do so, a missionary arrives bringing the lost child. Immediately the murderous plan is abandoned and the Chief is so glad that his little one has been found that he not only becomes friendly toward the missionary, but instructs his tribe to give ear to what the white man has to say.

Episode 2 represents the South. The scene is in the outskirts of Ujjai, where Livingston is resting for a while after long journeys. His men are building a mission house. The wife of Abdul-lah, the slave-raider, solicits help for her wounded husband. Livingston ministers to him bodily and spiritually, and receives as his fee a number of slaves, whom he at once sets free. During midday rest Livingston is full of thoughts of home. A runner comes panting in with news of the coming of white men. He is followed by a second and a third. Then Stanley enters with his followers. He begs Livingston to return with him. Livingston is sorely tempted, but—no, he cannot go until his work is done. And as he says the words his men break into a song of thanksgiving.

Episode 3 represents the East. This is in two scenes. Scene 1 is in a City in India. A crowd surrounds the mission house, clamoring for the return to her relatives of a child-wife, whom the missionaries have been educating. A Government official comes out with the missionaries, who appeal to him on behalf of the child. He can do nothing. The child flees down the street, the relatives follow, capture her and return in triumph. Scene 2 is in the outskirts of a town. A native procession is going to a temple, with songs, etc. There enters a funeral procession, leading a young woman to the pyre. The missionary party watches in despair, and pray for help. The ceremonies proceed, and just as the pyre is about to be lighted the Government official strides in with a proclamation doing away with the suttee. The missionary party breaks into a jubilant chant.

Episode 4 represents the West. This scene is a coral beach in Hawaii. Behind is the volcano Kilauea. A wedding group is dispersing in the sunshine. The volcano roars. One recalls the fact that when Pele, the Goddess of the lake of fire, is angered, she sends her priest to claim victims to appease her wrath. The priest is seen on the mountainside. He claims the bridegroom. The bride begs to be chosen, too. Instead, the priest claims a child playing unconsciously among the flowers. As he is about to lead them to their doom, Queen Kapulani comes quickly in and defies Pele and her priests and all her works. The priest curses her. She bids him lead her to the crater, and thereafter the fashion of Ujjai on Carmel—she taunts and defies the goddess, and breaks the power of Pele forever.

Episode 5 is the finale. At the close of Episode 4 the choir sings a chorale: "From North and South and East and West they come, they come." As they sing they ascend the steps of the platform, carrying palms in their hands and arranging themselves upon it in a great semi-circle. Then the various contingents from the other episodes, headed by their missionaries, enter to a quick marching song. "We come from the gloom of the shadowy trail," and arrange themselves in the form of a great star. Then they sing a hymn, beginning, "In Christ there is no East or West." And finally at a given signal, the audience rises and all-choir performers, audience and orchestra unite in singing the long metre doxology, "Praise God, from Whom all Blessings Flow."

The dominant idea of the exposition is to show the native life in non-Christian lands in order to impress the contrast with life in the countries which follow the Banner of the Cross, and to demonstrate the work of missions and to show the results of Christian work and the influence of Christianity upon the people and upon the customs of those countries.

This is done with actual scenes. Japan is depicted by a street scene as nearly true to life as it is possible to make it. There is a Japanese garden, Buddhist temple, a tea house and stewards in native costume give an accurate presentation of what a visitor to that country would find. A tall pagoda dominates the Chinese village and other structures that form the group include a temple, a chair hong, a Chinese house and a Christian chapel. In the latter the missionaries are seen teaching the natives. In this chapel are the books used by the missionaries, while on the walls are the banners and circulars in Chinese language used in the field work.

In the India section the great Towers of Silence are shown. There is also a wayside shrine, a Kali temple, a bazar and, most interesting of all, Zenana, the women's apartments in the home of an Indian gentleman. The African village is represented by a real Congo house, an open space where the various native industries are shown, an idol's house and the type of home used by the missionary in that land.

While the Mohammedan lands are represented in smaller spaces, considerable attention has been devoted to medical missions. Although the medical men of the Christian nations have received but scant courtesy from the powers in the heathen world, their work is becoming more and more appreciated by the natives who have been given relief instead of having their agonies prolonged as is usually the case where the native doctor is called into consultation. In the booths devoted to these lands are shown the methods pursued by the medical missionaries and by the native doctors—a sharp contrast that cannot but impress those who see it.

Not the least interesting feature of the exposition is the Home Mission section which is nearly as extensive as that of the Foreign Mission, and a great deal of space is devoted to depicting the evangelization of this great country. The section devoted to the American Indians is of particular interest for it brings to the mind vividly the great work that has been accomplished West of the Mississippi. This section shows a scene on the plains with an Indian village. There is the tepee and Medicine Man. There also, to illustrate the advance that has been made, is shown a typical Indian chapel of today. Such chapels as these are to be found on every one of the Indian reservations. Next to this section is the "Frontier" where one gets a glimpse of the life of the pioneer. There is the log cabin and the sod house, while a prairie wagon indicates that his stay may be but temporary.

In another part of the Home Mission section is shown a portion of the immigrant station at Ellis Island. Here one sees the natives of Europe in their old and picturesque costumes passing through the portals into the "melting pot" to become American citizens and help carry the Word to the far corners of the earth.

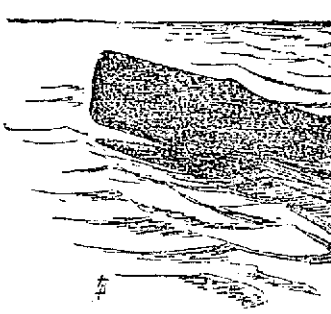

Although these scenic features are important, another great department of the exposition is the presenting of plays dealing with missionary life; the idea being to thus present the lessons to be gained from the work of those in the field. One of these plays is the "Pilgrimage," an acted story of the annual pilgrimage of the Moslems to sacred City of Mecca. In this play more than 200 persons take part. Another play entitled "Two Thousand Miles for a Book," deals with an incident in connection with the Nez Perce Indians. The story is that many years ago this tribe in the far Northwest heard of a "Book of Heaven" owned by the white man and it was told to them that this book would satisfy their yearning for knowledge of the future world, and at the same time tell them how to live. At a great council, delegates were selected to go East to search for the book. When they reached St. Louis, which was then but a military post, they found a missionary, and this missionary with the "Book" accompanied them to their tribe.

In addition to these plays there will be numerous tableaux and many reels of moving pictures so that the average visitor to one of these expositions will obtain a vast fund of information as to what is being done in the spreading of the Gospel.

Whales and Their Whereabouts

THERE are millions of monsters which traverse the briny seas in great "schools," from the frozen water of the Far North to the warm water of the tropical seas. These great collections of creatures are known as cetaceans, and include the whales, dolphins, porpoises and grampuses. In general appearance they resemble fishes—and are called such by the majority of people, but several peculiar characteristics possessed by them distinctly separate them from the fish family. Fishes generally possess scales, while they are absent in the cetaceans. The tails of fishes are set vertically, while those of the whale family are placed laterally. Whales have no anal fins which fishes possess, and the side or pectoral fins in whales are very different from those of the "finny" tribe. The fishes breathe by the help of gills, but whales breathe air without any gills, requiring them to come to the surface of the waters for every inspiration.

Sperm Whale.

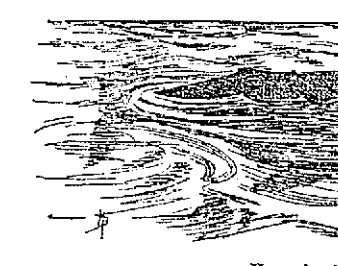

Another great difference between fishes and the whales is that the former are reproduced in the great majority of cases, by spawning, their eggs hatching in gravel beds, or while floating on the water's surface in large sheets, while the latter animals reproduce their young, as all other mammals do—by bringing them forth alive. The above characteristics of the whales place them in the mammal class, as has already been intimated.

Many people have an idea that a "whale" is a great sea monster, a hundred feet or more in length, with a mouth opening capable of taking in a large row boat with its occupants and swallowing the whole affair. The fact is that the actual throat opening of the true whales is not more than eight or ten inches in diameter, while the great jaws may open a vertical distance of ten feet or so. The reason for this state of things is very clear when we find out upon what sort of food these great creatures feed. Taking the right whale as typical example, the food of this animal consists of squids, various kinds of small fish, shrimps, etc. The manner of taking in this varied assortment of appetizers is quite interesting. The great creature swims along near the surface of the ocean with his huge mouth liberally open, and the great strips of "baleen" hanging from the roof of the mouth on each side like great coarse, hair-covered curtains, hanging from the roof of the mouth, as stated, and having most hair at its extremities, as when the jaws are opened the ends of the baleen are furthest apart, requiring more hair to act as a sieve for the small fish which might otherwise escape. Over two hundred and fifty strips of baleen have been counted on each side of a whale's mouth, which would weigh about one thousand pounds. Think of an animal which can carry nearly half a ton of material about in his mouth to do the service of a strainer.

This is now the material of most value found in these creatures, as fish oil and petroleum have largely replaced the whale oil that was prepared in such great quantities from the blubber of whales. The "blubber" is the lining of fat, from six to fifteen inches in thickness, encasing their bodies for the purpose of keeping them warm, as they are hot-blooded animals and would suffer greatly from cold unless thus protected. The largest bow-head whales are about sixty-five feet in length, the head taking up nearly one-third of this measurement. They are the largest whales of a black color, and the average amount of oil taken from their blubber is two hundred barrels. In the Far North, where they breed, through ice of three inches in thickness, by bumping their huge heads up against it, they are known as "ice-breakers." The caudal fin, or tail, of these animals is enormous, measuring from sixteen to twenty feet across. It is by means of this great paddle that they are enabled to reach the surface of the water so swiftly from the great depths to which they descend after their so-called "spouting" are out, and it is with these tails that they make havoc when near the small boats filled with fishermen who are about to harpoon them and seek their capture.

The breathing habits of whales are about as interesting as anything concerning them, and they differ somewhat in different species of the whale family. When his peace is undisturbed, the Greenland or Polar whale remains near the ocean's surface from one to one and one-half minutes, and in this time "spouts" by discharging an enormous amount of vapor from the "blow-hole" on top of his head, from six to nine times. After a quick inhalation of air he disappears for the lower regions where he may remain for twenty-five minutes, if he is feeding, but if a harpoon is sticking in perpendicular attitude just as they plunge deep down where no human skill may disturb them. Again, they will raise their enormous heads out of water and look about to see what is going on over the top surface of their homes. The sperm whale has the faculty of sinking instantly if frightened even if in nearly a horizontal position. When at play it will raise its flukes high in the air and bring them down with a tremendous splash on the water, or it may descend a few fathoms and shoot powerfully clear out of water, falling back on its surface with a bang which raises a mountain of foam and spray that may be seen for ten miles distant and producing a loud noise like the report of a coast-defense gun.

Owing to the peculiar formation of the long, narrow jaw of the sperm whale, the animal has to turn upside-down before it may grasp any large object between its jaws. There is recorded one case at least in which a sperm whale struck a boat, smashing it in pieces and catching and killing one of its occupants as he fell backward into the water from the crushed boat bow that had been sent high in the air.

Regarding size, the sexes vary greatly, the largest males of sperm whales being from eighty to eighty-four feet long, while their more slender mates are from one-third to one-fourth that length.

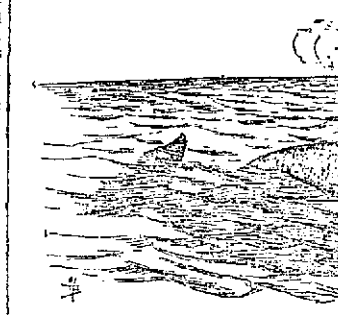

The last sperm whale observed on the New England coast, and also the youngest sperm whale ever seen, occurred off New Bedford, Mass., March 29th, 1842. It measured sixteen feet in length and weighed 3,053 pounds. The most valuable product of the sperm whale is the oil from a large cavity in the head called the "case," which sometimes contains twenty-five barrels of this valuable product.

The largest bull sperm whales, whose jaws may create such destruction above, have other methods of attack as given in the following: In the year 1820 a sperm whale twice rammed the American ship "Essex," while at sea, which sunk in ten minutes after the second attack was made. Without doubt, some ships that have never been heard from after leaving port, have been speedily sent to the bottom by these sea monsters whose powerful heads have been used as battering rams against their sides. The humpback of the Pacific Ocean is another member of the whale family, ranging in size from 25 to 75 feet in length, from whose five to fifteen inch blubber 5 to 15 barrels of oil are gathered.

The largest of all whales, and probably the largest creature which has ever existed upon the earth, is the sulphur-bottom whale of the Pacific, so-called from the yellowish coloring along the whitish belly of the huge animal. Captain Scammon reports the measurements and weight of one as given to him by Captain Roys, who measured it. The length was 95 feet; girth 39 feet; length of jaw bone 21 feet; length of longest baleen four feet; yield of baleen 800 pounds; yield of oil 110 barrels; weight of whole animal from calculations, 294,000 pounds. How would you like to row up alongside of such a creature in an "outrigger"? It wouldn't be long before it would be an out-and-out-rigger.

ger sure enough. The skin along the throat and chest after a generous meal has been taken. The sulphur bottom is the swiftest as well as the largest of the whale family, and on this account is seldom pursued and never captured except by aid of a bomb-lance, which explodes on entering the animal.

Another variety of whale is the fin-back, which resembles the sulphur-bottom whale but is a much smaller animal. The California gray whale is still another variety inhabiting the lagoons along the southern coast of lower California.

The taking of whales, as some people know, is done from small boats which have been sent out from large whaling ships with all the tackle aboard for the finishing up of the business. The capture involves much danger for the men who approach the great animals in a small boat and plunge the harpoon into the body of the creature.

The most terrible animals of the ocean, hunting their prey in packs as do wolves, and attacking it with fearful ferocity, are killer-whales or orcas, which are to be met with in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. A bunch of these creatures will attack a toothless whale and tear him terribly about the mouth, eating out his tongue if they can get a chance at it, as he plunges about in the sea of foam trying to shake off his savage enemies, who battle with him until he is exhausted and goes to the bottom where they tear his body to pieces and devour it after bringing it, piece by piece, to the surface to swallow.

One captain stated that 13 porpoises and 14 seals were found in the stomach of one of these killers of the Atlantic.

boxes of candy arranged on a platform. If you encircle one of these with a ring, the candy is yours. The winners at the fair were given prizes of candy and cigars.

Exhibits in Tent

The tent contained a variety of exhibits, including poultry, vegetables, cats, etc. Some fine specimens of white Leghorn and Plymouth Rock hens were exhibited by J. J. Carleton and G. A. Pettigill. A large colored Muscovy duck was shown by Mrs. G. A. Lewis and a pair of bantams by C. R. Wood. Among the many cats that which attracted the greatest attention was "Fluffy Bunties," a huge Angora owned by Miss Ida M. Richards. The many children in the tent, the prettiest little girls in the neighborhood, were attracted to the exhibit by the sight of a great cat. Several large specimens of the tiger breed. This exhibit formed a big feature of the tent show.

Next were the vegetables. The chief winners of premiums for vegetables growing were Stone Cottage farm, J. J. Carleton, A. B. Peabody, Charles J. Carleton and W. H. Davis. There were some magnificent arrays of huge watermelons and pumpkins and squash. There was an exhibition of a sun flower, the stalk of which was approximately 16 feet long. The famous "Peter" lily, sold at the fair, was a specimen of the town, stood guard in the entrance to the tent.

The fruits and fancy work were shown in the hall and great crowds gathered to inspect these. The judges found considerable difficulty in awarding the prizes in these contests. There were a number of curiosities and novelties among them. There were many things of value. There was a large piece of work on cloth by the cross-stitch method, two beautiful shawls made in Scotland about a century ago by the grandmother of Elizabeth R. Kendrick, a large map of Cuba made on cloth by Samuel E. Mann, for the use of missionary convention. There were pitchers, clocks, silverware, etc., all handed down through the ages. Among the curiosities was an ear of corn which had grown in the shape of a human hand. It had an almost perfectly formed hand and four fingers and created a great deal of comment. The hall was also the place where the speakers will for the ability of those who put them up, for they could not have been better.

The Baby Show

Eight babies were entered in the baby show which took place in the morning and the prize winners are shown in the accompanying photographs. The award for the prettiest baby was given to Everett Albert, a son of Mrs. Charles Richardson, son of that for the plumpiest went to Eleanor May Richardson, daughter of Mrs. Richardson, and the prize for the best behaved was captured by Lillian Augusta Harris, daughter of Mrs. Henry Harris.

Perhaps the best feature of all the fair exhibits was the apple show in Pelham hall. Some of the finest specimens of all the different varieties were there and they attracted those which were seen at the fair.

Among the fancy articles was a very-choiced afghan, which attracted many people.

The horse-pulling event which took place in the morning was won by David H. Bailey. Several other prizes were won by the other contestants.

No Horse Racing

There being no available horse racing track, that sport was out of the question, but several races and other sports were gotten up which served to furnish almost as much amusement to the spectators. The field sports opened with a tug-of-war between the street railway men and the farmers. Although the former seemed to have it all their own way, but soon the farmers of the soil began to show the results of their strenuous work and hurling men in "Gross, please," boys were pulled over the line.

The doughnut eating contest was most amusing. The doughnuts, suspended from a long pole stretched between two trees at the roadside and there were a dozen contestants. The competitors were not allowed to use their hands in this race, but were obliged to snap at the doughnuts as they swung on the strings. Frank Lewis took first prize and issued a challenge to all who consider themselves to be possessors of culinary goods.

The Rooster Drive

The rooster drive consisted of a number of fun for the runners as well as for those who watched the race. The roosters were not allowed to use their hands in this race, but were obliged to snap at the doughnuts as they swung on the strings. Frank Lewis took first prize and issued a challenge to all who consider themselves to be possessors of culinary goods.

He'd Commit Suicide Himself if He Had Any Brains to Blow Out

as if he would move several feet but changed his mind and stood perfectly still. One would have thought that they were posing for a photograph instead of posing. The event was so decidedly show that the judges left the waiting for the finish and got the race underway.

Lecturer Felcher

The speaker of the day was Lecturer A. L. Felcher of the State grange and he addressed the crowd from the steps of the town library. He spoke of the good work of the organization in New England and made comparisons between the United States and other countries in the amount of their farm products.

The program which the orchestra rendered is as follows: March, "Indiana"; "Holloman's"; "Sepia"; "Glad"; "Cornet solo"; "Sepia"; "John S. Carlson"; "Sepia"; "Blue and Gray"; "Dance"; "The Shadows".

The whole affair was a grand success from every point of view and is the best that the Pelham grange has ever held. The people who attended numbered in the vicinity of 500 and all were happy, good natured and eager to see everybody else as well as themselves have a good time. Late in the afternoon they returned to their homes, tired but immensely pleased with the day's outing.

TOMORROW AFTERNOON

TRUSTEES SALE OF A PART OF THE WHITING ESTATE IN FOUR SEPARATE PARCELS. COMMENCING PROMPTLY AT 2:30 O'CLOCK.

THE FIRST PARCEL is located at No. 206 Broadway, corner of Mt. Vernon street, consisting of a one-story building with two stories and about 22 square feet of land. The Broadway store rents for $25 a month and the small store on Mt. Vernon street rents for $20 a month. The lot has a frontage of about 20 feet on Broadway and about 34 feet on Mt. Vernon street. This is a splendid corner lot and would make a nice corner to improve as only a part is built upon. The lot is adapted for a three-tenement house.

THE SECOND PARCEL consists of a two-tenement house, store and about 210 square feet of land at Nos. 497-499 Broadway. The house is two and one-half stories with two tenements, store and about 210 square feet of land. On the first floor there is a store and a five-room tenement in the rear. On the second floor there is a tenement of six rooms and two finished rooms in the attic. This parcel rents for $20 a month and the present tenants have been there for a good many years. The lot has a frontage of 22 1/2 feet on Broadway with an area of 2100 square feet which gives a very good yard room in the rear of the lot.

THE THIRD PARCEL which is located at Nos. 481-483 Broadway and 186 in the rear consists of two two-tenement houses and about 3226 square feet of land. The four tenements rent for $44 a month. The lot has a frontage of 54 feet on Broadway with an area of 3226 square feet. This is an excellent parcel of real estate.

THE FOURTH PARCEL which is located at Nos. 475 and 477 Broadway consists of two one-story buildings and about 3218 square feet of land. One of the buildings rents for $20 a month and the other for $10 a month, making an income of $30 a month. The lot has a frontage of 47 1/2 feet on Broadway with an area of 3218 square feet. This is a very choice lot and would make an excellent place for a large block or a small factory. The present income is sufficient to take care of it and the purchaser is sure to make a profit.

Now, then, the above four parcels are located right in the best renting part of Broadway and within four minutes' walk of many large industries in this section of the city. The sale will be absolute on the several premises on Saturday, Sept. 28th, commencing at 2:30 o'clock.

come this way he probably will go into Maine to deliver a few addresses. According to present plans the governor will start his New York invasion next Tuesday with a speech at James town. That night he will speak in Buffalo. While in New York last week he arranged a five-day itinerary for that state, which was to end with two meetings in New York city, one at Carnegie hall and the other at Camp Roosevelt on October 5. This plan was only tentative, however, and there may be a change made when the governor again meets the heads of the speaker's bureau. Further than conferring with the progressive campaign managers the governor will do nothing but rest in New York until Tuesday.

PRES. TAFT AND GOV. WILSON

Rival Candidates Exchange Greetings and Then Talk of Work of the Campaign

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—President Taft and Governor Woodrow Wilson at last have met and shaken hands. It was in Mr. Taft's suite at the Copley Plaza.

The original plan arranged by the newspaper photographers was to have the meeting in one of the first floor reception rooms, but at the last minute Mr. Wilson felt it would be better if some way was arranged so he should go to meet Mr. Taft, rather than have the president come to him.

But the president for all that was the one who came forward with the

Thus hardly had the governor appeared in the doorway before taking two steps forward, he gave his greeting.

"How are you, governor?" he said, "I am mighty glad to meet you," and as he spoke his hand and the hand of his visitor went up simultaneously and they clasped.

Some one made a faint attempt at applause.

"Has it been a hard day?" asked the president, humorously, looking over the governor.

"Yes," said Mr. Wilson, smiling back, "I am just getting my first lesson in campaign traveling, and I suppose I am not wholly accustomed yet."

"Oh, that will come in time," said the president.

"I am glad indeed, Mr. President," said the governor very slowly, "for this opportunity to meet you."

"I am glad," said the president.

Then he asked the governor as to how his voice was standing it, how his tour of the day had gone and plans for the morrow. The two men talked quietly for a few minutes and then the governor said good night, and turned to go to his rooms.

As he left he extended his thanks to the gentlemen connected with their courtesy. "President Taft," he said, "is a man for whom I have the greatest respect in the world and I am glad of the opportunity."

Thus the incident closed, with happiness for all but the newspaper photographers, who missed the historical picture that they had been planning for.

Baby would cry all night with itching

Face a mass of scabs—Resinol cured

Philadelphia, Pa., July 26, 1912
"My baby's trouble first started on his cheek in little pimples. It spread all over his face till he was a mass of thick scabs. He would itch him so he would scratch it till it would bleed, and his pillow and nightgown would be a mass of blood in the morning. He would cry all night. This lasted about three months. I sent for samples of Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and when I put them on they seemed to ease him, so I bought a fifty-cent jar of Resinol Ointment, and before I used it all his face was cured." (Signed) Mrs. Hartzell, 1920 Oakdale Street.

Trial free: Resinol Soap (25c) and Resinol Ointment (50c and $1) are available household remedies for skin troubles, pimples, dandruff, sores, burns and rashes. Your druggist sells them, but for free sample of each, address Dept. 2-A, Resinol Chem. Co., Baltimore, Md.

I have a message to deliver to the people of the district. This can best be done by being a candidate.

"A candidate can reach the voters and talk to them face to face. They will listen to him long enough to find out what he stands for and whether he represents them. The time has long gone by when a person who wishes to influence or convince the people can serenely sit in his study or editorial chair or even behind the candidates and direct the action of the citizens. The days of bossism and machine politics have passed.

"The candidate must step out into the open and fight his way by legitimate argument and approved acts at service to popular favor. He cannot hope to secure that favor by hiding under the cover of monopoly and shielding himself behind the protecting any times and places they may desire to meet me.

"To be of service to them is great enough ambition for any man."

Other speakers at the meeting included Prof. Joseph L. Larson, of the Allen school of Newton, Daniel J. Cosgrove, candidate for Lieutenant governor, William N. Osgood, candidate for congress in the 5th district, Cecil P. Dodge representative candidate in the 14th district, Rev. F. G. Alger, Rev. A. C. Ferrin, Rev. W. A. Wood and Rev. George C. Wright.

GIVEN A SURPRISE

Rev. and Mrs. S. Frederick Hammarlof Visited by a Number Of Their Parishioners Last Night

Rev. S. Frederick Hammarlof, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, and his wife were surprised last night, the occasion being the third anniversary of the former's pastorate. During the short time that he has resided in this city he has succeeded, with the assistance of his parishioners, in having the church in Meadowcroft street remodelled.

The pastor was presented a long white envelope by Frank A. Lindquist, organist of the church. The contents of the envelope were not shown, but without doubt it contained considerable money which was given by the parishioners in recognition of the efforts of the pastor. Mrs. Hammarlof was presented a beautiful bouquet.

A brief musical program was carried out and later coffee was served. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of: Frank A. Lindquist, Carl Nilsson, Olaf Lindquist, August Nyström, Olaf Olson, Philip Glison, Nils Forts of the pastor. Mrs. Hammarlof, Anderson, John Persson and Nels Palm.

The coming presidential election is oral months. The section principally affected at this time is the weaving department, where only three-quarters of the looms are being operated. In several of the other departments business is also very slow.

One of the officials of the mill informed the writer that the presidential years are the worst for their products, and during the past year at the present time, when the election season, had been on, they were obliged to curtail in many of their departments. The dull season will probably continue for several months.

The Bunting manufactures an excellent line of goods, and these are sold in all sections of the country. They employ a fine class of operatives, who are well paid. Some of the present employees have been with the company for many years, and owing to the excellent treatment accorded the operatives they very seldom seek employment elsewhere.

The above cut shows the weave room, where all the looms are located, the room in which at present the greatest slack spell is in progress.

OLD HORSE WAS KILLED

Had Been Driven by Mr. Calderwood for Years

A horse owned by Calderwood and Robbins, tobacco dealers and driven by Mr. Calderwood, fell down near the corner of Merrimack and Dutton streets about noon today and a great deal of difficulty was experienced in removing the animal. Humane Society Agent Richardson with his assistant, Mr. Gilmore, arrived at once at the scene of the accident and lent their efforts in an attempt to get the horse on its feet.

For a whole hour the officers with the assistance of others worked without success for the horse refused to move. Boards were used to prop the animal up, but as soon as these were removed, he would fall back again.

The animal is extremely old and Mr. Calderwood has owned it for years. On several other occasions when the horse stumbled and fell, the same trouble was met with in trying to get it to rise. The horse was suffering with two bad spavins and was out over the left eye and about the forehead. Upon the advice of Mr. Richardson, the veterinary ambulance was summoned to the spot and the horse loaded in. This latter part was accomplished by means of a block and pulley. A chain was fastened around the body of the animal and blankets arranged so as to prevent injury from the links cutting into the flesh and in this way the men succeeded in loading the aged horse into the wagon. It is quite probable that the animal will be killed.

When part way home Mr. Calderwood decided that after all he had better have the horse killed.

AN AEROPLANE ARMADA

The First Review of One Ever Held

PARIS, Sept. 27. The first review ever held of a complete aeroplane armada took place today at Villa Couperly near Paris. No fewer than 72 French army flying machines with their full complements of pilots and observers and the attached park of motor trucks bearing supplies there passed in review before the French minister for war Alexander Millerand. There was great enthusiasm among the spectators as the armament saluted the minister of war.

An extraordinary spectacle was presented at the conclusion of the review when 20 aeroplanes rose in a flock, circled for a few moments over the parade ground and then sped off toward the east to resume their stations on the German frontier. The remainder of the armada scattered in the course of the afternoon to various military posts.

Dow & Co., which made an assignment Wednesday, refused today to answer questions of the exchange on law and insolvency, refused to answer any questions under the rule which gives the accused in days in which to reply to charges.

District Attorney Pelletier stated today that the Dow failure would be investigated by the grand jury which convenes on Oct. 7.

HELD CLAMBAKE

The members of Club Fleur de Lis held a clam bake at their well appointed club house on the shores of Long Pond yesterday afternoon. Practically all the members were present and they had as their guests friends from Lowell, Lawrence, Nashua and other places.

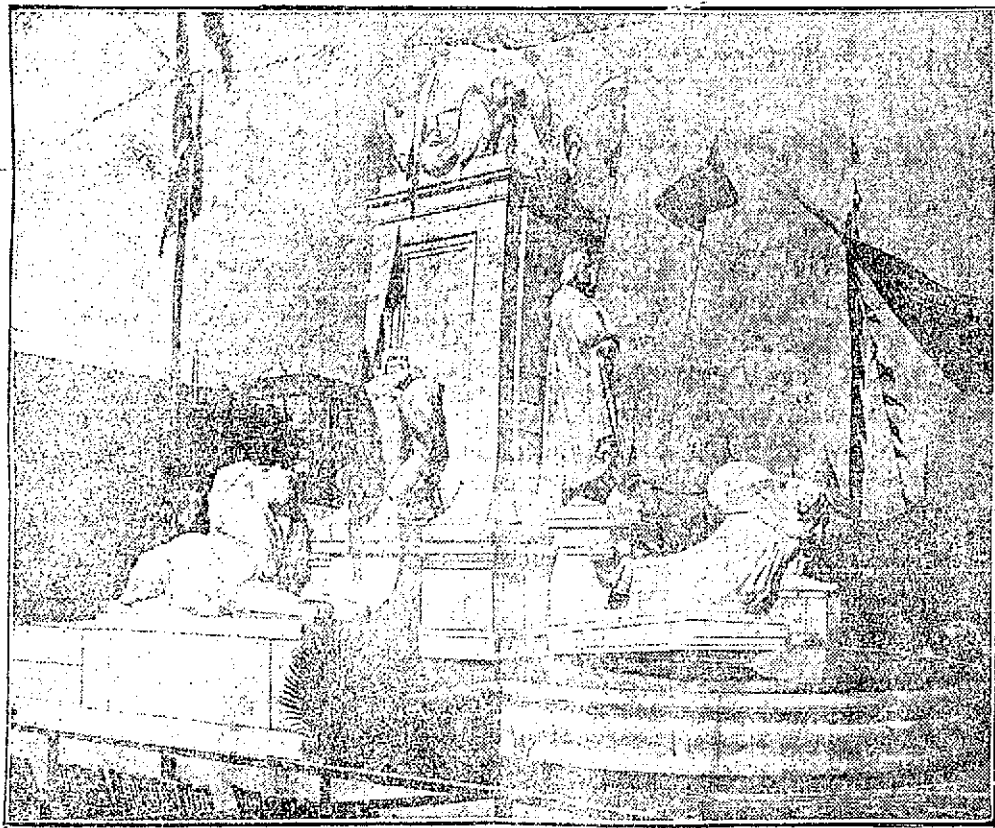

Noe Chaput, the local chief, had charge of the bake and as on previous occasions he proved to be what he has always been, a past master in the culinary art. Steamed clams and broiled lobster constituted the menu and all enjoyed the repast to the fullest extent. The bake was followed by a very interesting entertainment.

Body Identified

The body of the young man found dead in a local hotel yesterday morning and taken to the undertaking rooms of Higgins Brothers in Lawrence street, was identified today as James Blinsk and not William Blinsk, as was at first reported. The dead man's brother William came to Lowell today and went to the funeral parlors, where he made known the dead man's identity. The brother said that James was 22 years of age, and came to Lowell Wednesday in search of work. William resides in Rockland, Mass., his brother was living with him up to the time he left Lowell. The surviving brother said that deceased was in good health, and attributes his death to his unfamiliarity with the gas fixtures. Deceased also leaves two sisters in Russia.

The members of the Immaculate Conception sodality of St. Peter's church are rehearsing for the presentation of the opera, "Altkade," to be given in the near future. Frederick O. Hunt, supervisor of music in the public schools, is in charge of the production.

Trying to Make Columbus Day a National Holiday Movement Has Been Started and May be Successful

THE COLUMBUS MEMORIAL IN WASHINGTON

Heretofore celebrations of Columbus day, Oct. 12, now observed in twenty-three states as a legal day of rest, have been confined by state laws. There has been no concerted movement throughout the United States to pay honor to the great discoverer of all time, who discovered America, although it didn't know it. But this year has been marked by the beginning of a movement to make the day a national holiday, to be observed not only in every state, but in a national manner. The movement originated a short time ago in Chicago and has gained many adherents. It is planned tomorrow to begin an effort for uniting the various nations born elements of the population of the United States.

In discussing the matter a prominent Irish-American of Chicago said: "Although as Italians we are proud of the world's greatest discoverer, Columbus, we realize that the world also owes him and that the suitable way of honoring him and of making the anniversary of his landing in the new world properly celebrated would be to give all the people an opportunity to know him in the demonstration. We know from experience that many people, including not only the English speaking, but also the German, Polish, Lithuanian and French speaking Americans, will join in a general celebration and will insure the success of the international demonstration." Another Italian said:

"The plan of a general Columbus day celebration taken up by thousands of leaders of the Italian organizations of Chicago is a splendid honor for the American people and if carried out this year will be an inspiration to the people of Chicago."

The twenty-three states which have formally, by acts of their legislatures, recognized the claims of Columbus to be the father of an American holiday are: Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont and Washington.

Unless we call the great Columbus celebration in 1955, held to commemorate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America, a national Columbus celebration there has never been a national recognition of the great discoverer's claim. Probably the nearest approach to such an observance was the unveiling on June 8 of this year of the magnificent Columbus memorial in Washington. It was an occasion honored by the presence of the president of the United States, members of his cabinet, the Italian ambassador and other diplomats, many high officials and 4000 officials and other prominent citizens from all parts of the United States. More than 50,000 residents of the national capital witnessed the unveiling of the Columbus memorial. In honor of the occasion there was a grand parade, a public banquet, a display of fireworks, a parade on the White House lawn and other manifestations of rejoicing.

Quite appropriately the visitor to Washington for the first time, entering the city by way of the great union railroad station, sees the new Columbus memorial first of all the city's many wonders. It stands in the plaza in front of the station. The figure of Columbus faces the sunset, as he did in his memorable voyages.

The memorial has taken the form of a fountain, with a tall shaft shielding the figure of the discoverer. The shaft is forty-five feet high. The heroic size statue of the discoverer is wrapped in a cloak of his period and he stands at the prow of his ship, which projects into the fountain. At his feet is a graceful female figure typifying "Discovery." On one side of the main figure stands an aged patriarch, symbol of the old world, while the new is represented on the other side by an American Indian, shown as about to draw an arrow from his quiver. At the rear of the shaft is a medallion honoring the members of Ferdinand and Isabella, whose aid made the first voyage of Columbus a possibility.

On the top of the shaft is a globe, guarded by great stone eagles, and two cherubim flanks protect the extremities of the granite balustrade in front of the fountain. The globe indicates the world, and carved thereon is the western hemisphere uncovered by Columbus. The memorial was the work of the late Daniel H. Burnham, the architect, and Lorado Taft, the sculptor.

GOVERNOR WILSON IN FALL RIVER

He Addressed Large Meeting and
Said Lowell Paid the Lowest
Wages in the State

BARRE, Sept. 27.—Gov. Wilson's train was 25 minutes late into Barre yesterday where Col. William A. Gaston, Representative George H. Ellis of Newton and others interested in the success of the agricultural fair were at the station to escort the candidate to the fair grounds, about three miles away.

At the fair grounds about 3000 people shouted a welcome to the distinguished guest. The speaker's stand was decorated in Princeton colors and streamers. The auto that conveyed the governor to the grounds was also garbed in the colors of Old Nassau.

Col. Gaston led the way to the grandstand that was jammed with folks who turned out to see the democratic nominee. The colonel was arrayed in his best farmer's clothes and with an ox whip in hand rapped for order. In the front row sat distinguished democratic farmers like Gov. Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald, Congressman John A. Thayer, Robert M. Bennett, Joseph H. O'Neil, Edward F. McSweeney, Col. A. C. Drinkwater, Thomas F. Dwyer, Thomas F. Riley, David J. Walsh.

Ten-Minute Talk to Farmers

Gov. Wilson made a 10-minute speech in which he told his good farmer friends what, in his opinion, the government should do to help them market their crops.

Gov. Wilson was followed by Gov. Foss who told what he had tried to get the republican legislature to do to assist farmers in their annual cattle fairs.

He also said that he stood for railroad legislation that would regulate the rates of the railroads and the express rates, and the time involved, and after it has done for the farmer what the cooperative associations of the farmers might do for themselves.

It has put him in touch with all the opportunities by which he can dispose of his product to the best advantage.

Battle of the Ballots
There are men in this country, men to whom we do not ordinarily look for aid in matters of this kind, men like the president, for example, of the great Felco system of railroads, Mr. Yoakum, who is going out and doing what is for the interest of the railroads, but also for the interest of the community. He is building up the great information at the proper time, supply him with the additional information of the routes over which he can make his shipments, of the freight rates and the express rates, and the time involved, and after it has done for the farmer what the cooperative associations of the farmers might do for themselves.

Hands Must Be Freed

"Now, while you are deeply interested in being supplied with roads, you want to know where the roads lead to and what they are for. You know in connection with the Department of Agriculture in Washington there has been set up a good roads department, but there is a great deal more that the government of the United States can do for you than to supply you with good roads.

"There is a work waiting to be done which I want to mention here this afternoon. The government can supply the farmer with detailed information as to all the markets in which he can dispose of his goods, give him this information at the proper time, supply him with the additional information of the routes over which he can make his shipments, of the freight rates and the express rates, and the time involved, and after it has done for the farmer what the cooperative associations of the farmers might do for themselves.

THE PATTERSON RUBBER COMPANY

Name of the New Concern That Will Build Big Plant in Upper Middlesex Street

The new industry to locate in upper Middlesex street, announcement of which was made in the Sun, on Tuesday, Sept. 17, will be known as the Patterson Rubber Co. The latter is a Massachusetts corporation, recently formed, with a capital stock of $500,000, and numbers among its board of directors and officials some of the best known rubber manufacturers in the country.

Ground for the new buildings will be broken in about two weeks, and work will be hurried along as fast as possible. There will be five buildings in all, one of four stories and of brick construction. The concern will ultimately employ over 1000 persons. While many of the employees will be skilled workmen, the majority on the pay roll will be inexperienced, but all will receive good pay.

Many of the officials of the company will take up permanent residence in this city, while a number of the skilled operatives to come here with the company will also reside in Lowell or Chelmsford. The principal output of the concern will be automobile tires.

John S. Patterson of Providence is president of the company and he has been a rubber manufacturer for almost thirty years. For the past 15 years he has been in charge of the manufacturing for the Ives Rubber Co., which is part of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Co., which in turn is a subsidiary of the United States Rubber Co. Mr. Patterson is rated as one of the best and most successful rubber manufacturers in the country.

The treasurer is Capt. Francis H. Appleton of Brookline, himself a very successful manufacturer of reclaimed rubber, with a big plant at Franklin, Mass. James M. Patterson, son of John S. Patterson, is the vice president, and Francis H. Appleton, Jr., of

HAIR STOPS FALLING, DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS-25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Save your Hair, Beautify it, Invigorate your scalp, Danderine grows hair

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair—growing all over your scalp.

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a comb with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knott's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—also it has been neglected or ignored by careless treatment—that's all.

BREADS FOR BREAKFAST

That Prove to be Very Delicious

Rice Puffs—Boil one cupful of rice soft. When cold add one-half cupful of milk, two eggs, one teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two cupfuls of flour or enough of the flour to make a batter sufficiently stiff to drop from a spoon. Roll in hard like crullers.

Emergency Biscuits—Take three cupfuls of flour, six teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter cupful of shortening (butter, lard, or lard), one cupful of liquid (water or milk). Mix dry ingredients and cut flour into this mixture. Add milk quickly, stirring with a knife. Drop by spoonfuls into buttered muffin tins and bake.

Parker House Rolls—One quart of sifted flour, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one tablespoonful of sugar and a little salt. Heat a pint of sweet milk over steam nearly to a boil. Pour over the butter, sugar and lard in the flour. Beat until lukewarm, then add one-half cupful of yeast (one-half cake). Let this rise until very light, then add flour and mix. Let this mixture rise again, then roll out. Pour some melted butter and grease over the dough, then cut with a biscuit cutter and double together. Put them quite far apart in the tin and let them rise again. Bake in a very hot oven about fifteen minutes. This will make thirty rolls.

Brown Bread with Raisins—Two cupfuls of buttermilk or sour milk and one cupful of New Orleans molasses. Mix and dissolve in it one level teaspoonful of baking soda and a pinch of salt and then stir in whole wheat flour until it is a little thicker than cake batter. Grease one pound baking powder cans (grease tops as well) and fill them two-thirds full. Put the lids on lightly and bake one hour in an oven not too hot. Leave bread in can to cool about fifteen minutes before removing it. Add raisins to mixture if desired. This makes four loaves, for which one pound of seeded raisins is needed.

Quick Graham Bread—Two cupfuls of sour milk mixed with one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda, one-half cupful of sugar, one-quarter cupful of molasses, one teaspoonful of salt and enough graham and white flour in equal parts to make a stiff dough. Beat all together with a spoon and pour into bread pans. Let rise three-quarters of an hour, then bake without further kneading in same pans.

Sally Lunn—One pint of milk, scalded and cooled, one small teaspoonful of milk, one tablespoonful of lard or melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of baking powder and enough flour to make as stiff as biscuit dough. Roll out the desired size and bake in hot oven.

Autumn Footwear

Autumn, as usual, brings with it several new styles in footwear. Light-colored shoes and boots have disappeared, and there are signs of a decided return in favor of black boots. A very good looking buttoned boot that is a favorite this fall has a go-losh of patent kid and uppers of black suede or cloth, while another all black pattern is made with uppers of ordinary kid and circular brogues of patent kid. This latter, by the way, should not be confused with patent leather. It is a great improvement upon it in a great many ways, being much softer to the feet and without the heart-breaking tendency to crack after being worn a short while. Patent kid may be trusted to wear as long and as evenly as the rest of the boot.

The bronze shoe has been revived again. It is worn with bronze silk stockings to match. Nothing looks so pretty with mottled blue, pale pink or pale mauve evening dresses as well as with pale sulphur and primrose shades as a bronze kid slipper.

The new bath and boudoir slippers are particularly pretty, especially the latter, one of the most attractive ideas being a Turkish slipper in velvet that has the merest suspicion of a heel, just enough to relieve the unpleasant flat footed feeling of a genuine Turkish slipper. These are lined with satin to match the velvet and finished with a competition chess bow of satin put on a little on one side.

Kits and T's, No. Billerica, tonight.

Household Tips

An excellent furniture polish is made of equal parts of olive oil, vinegar and alcohol. Rub in with one woolen rag and polish with another. Never scrub white paint with sand soap, as it will wear away under the grinding process, however lightly applied. Clean it instead with a cloth dipped in thick suds of white soap and wipe off with a clean cloth wrung from warm water.

If you are willing to give half an hour of time and energy to acquiring a bright polish for a choice piece of mahogany wipe it with a soft cloth wrung from cold water, then rub with a dry cloth until the desired polish is obtained.

If your carpets lose their brightness so that no amount of sweeping will keep them from looking dull and characterless, treat them to a generous sprinkling of coarse salt, then sweep the salt up vigorously with a broom. You will be amazed by the result.

White felt hats may be rejuvenated by removing the trimmings, dusting them quickly with fine white cornmeal, rubbing the moat over them gently and then brushing them briskly, first with a stiff clothes brush and then with a soft hat brush.

FALL STYLE BULLETIN for Men:

—A hint of slenderness in the figure is again the prevailing note in the fall fashion.

—This does not mean tightness, although you run the risk of this fault in cheaply tailored suits without "balance." It means only a slightly narrower shoulder and hips, and trousers a trifle slimmer. Lapels are soft and rolling.

—Fabrics are as many as the men who will look them over. Worsteds are still popular. Rougher goods are feeling the style influence and you cannot be better dressed than in a Stein-Bloch tweed or chevrot.

—You can be fitted without doubt in a Stein-Bloch fall suit. A moment's call on your way home, or downtown, will settle the question—and the odds are on your being fitted and saving money.

WORLD'S PEACE WAS DISCUSSED

At Banquet of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—World-peace, in one form or another, was the thought in every speech at the great banquet last night in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza, where President Taft was the guest of the Fifth International Congress of Chambers of Commerce. Peace, that business might prosper, peace that the waste of armies and fleets might be saved, peace through arbitration, peace for the sake of the struggling for existence—every American toward the hope, every European held forth the belief that peace is coming, and coming through the broad-minded selfishness of commerce. It was as though the sentiment had grown steadily all through the sessions of the week, to climax and demand assurance when business had been laid aside.

Not that the dinner was unrelieved by humor, the bursts of laughter were even more frequent than the roars of applause, even though Signor Salmorigli did refer to "this solemn occasion." It ranked among Boston's biggest dinners, since 1893, when it was around the tables; it was by far the most splendid gathering which ever came here, and for beauty and brilliancy it overtopped Boston's experience.

Received By the President

At 5 o'clock the first of the detail of 150 policemen marched into Trinity place and lined the curb on both sides of the street. They were not a minute ahead of the crowd. Many entered the Copley-Plaza and thought to see Mr. Taft, as he entered, but the police marched in also and blocked the foyer. It took a badge to get past them—or at the least, evening dress. Inside the hotel the state suite, which since Monday has been the headquarters of the congress, had been cleared out. The great "information bureau" had become a beautiful reception room, with all the long tables and clutter of business gone.

At 6 o'clock there was a faint hand-clapping outside and President Taft entered with Maj. Rhoades. He went at once to the rooms reserved for him and dressed for the dinner.

By good management practically every one of the dinners was received by the president before 7.15, when he left the reception room and went to his place at the table. In a twinkling the reception room became a drawing-room, where the women of the congress and of the Boston committee whittled away dinner time over a buffet lunch. They came later into the balconies to listen to the speaking.

By good management, too, the diners easily made their way into the great ballroom, decorated with national flags and with the blue and white of the chamber of commerce, paneled with fruits and vegetables and hung with greenery.

It is a great oblong room, with an arched and cloistered balcony along one side and one end. In the end were the musicians; along the balcony on the south side were the tables for the distinguished guests. And below them small circular tables were set thick and every chair was occupied. At the east end the foyer was similarly fitted at the top of its broad stairs.

Roar of Cheers for Taft

It was just 9.30 when there came the general shifting of chairs, the rush for good positions and a flutter of women into the end arches of the balcony. A Japanese woman in the traditional kimono and obi of her country, sat in front at one end. Countess d'Almeida from Brazil was at the other end, and women from all the nations of the earth sat between them.

The distinguished guests drew closer to the central box where President Taft sat, and the women crowded closer, till when the speaking began they occupied all the balcony except the central opening.

President Taft took a chair by the rail and the men below broke out in cheers which lasted a long time. He sat in profile to the "house," and remained motionless.

President Russell of the Boston chamber of commerce came to the rail and began speaking. He could not be heard, but continued, while his audience hissed for silence. When he was audible he was saying, "However far we have failed in what we wished to for you—"

"No, no!" shouted the men and it became evident that this was to be no formal speech making. The foreigners have taken Boston at its word and have adopted the free-and-easy ways of this country with enthusiasm. They have done their best with their jokes, and all through the evening each point made by a speaker was followed by a buzzing sound which meant translations—and usually by a second round of laughter as the foreigners got the point.

Foreigners Greet President

Mr. Russell's first mention of President Taft brought everybody to his feet, with cheering that sounded like a political meeting. The president never moved a muscle of his face. Every succeeding reference to him by Mr. Russell brought out the ready applause, and when his grave introduction—"Gentlemen, I present to you the president of the United States"—was given, the audience shouted again with delight. The people leaped to their feet, waving napkins and handkerchiefs; they clapped their hands; they shouted like native-born Americans, and wouldn't stop.

In the arches of the right-hand balcony the leader of the orchestra was waving his arms, but no note of the music could be heard.

The president in splendid voice complimented the merchants, and the applause arose again, while the interpreters explained, the English exclaiming, after their habit, "Good! Good! Hear, hear!"

The president repeated his recent call for a budget and then said: "You are here to promote trade. The trade is peace." He declared there must be some escape from the increasing burden of the argument. Again the applause answered him instantaneously.

As he ended, Gov. Foss leaned over and shook the president's hand.

The governor was the next man introduced. He read his speech from manuscript, as did all the following speakers. The awakened applause when he expressed the hope that the Panama canal bill will one day be open to all

Speakers From the Congress

M. Canan-Logan, president of the congress, came next. He read his speech, which alternated between French and English gracefully. It was a masterpiece of phrase. He, too, spoke of "the absurdity of war," and President Taft applauded.

Signor Louis Salmorigli of Italy, with a white enameled cross of an order hanging around his neck by a broad green ribbon, spoke briefly. He commended the most intense interest.

And so the order of the evening came to F. Faithful Borg, a witty Scotchman, who uttered droll comments on Boston and sincere consideration of the great topics which have been uppermost here. As he ceased, Pres. Russell, thanking everybody, brought the official part of the fifth congress to a close.

SHAPES IN FALL HATS

What Women Will Wear This Season

It is noticeable that while the derby shapes of last season are not shown in the fall collection, says the Millinery Trade Review, the derby idea is the basis of many of the new blocks and frames. The derby crown is retained with a number of variations in the brims, they being both flat and rolled of various widths running to about three inches for those that are rolled. The flat brims are even wider at times, reminding one of the Quaker brims. The same general idea goes into extreme shapes, which droop both back and front. A shape of this sort is about seventeen inches long and thirteen inches wide, while the crown is eight to nine inches high. The position shape is another of the prominent styles. In the position the crowns are usually regulation, with great variety in the brims, which go to the length of twenty-two inches. Width fourteen inches. Very large flat shapes have not been done away with in the fall millinery. A feature of these large shapes is a model that droops parasol fashion all round. These have tall trimmings protruding from the center of the tops, usually some sort of wing or feather with a cabochon base of plumage or silk material.

The dress shapes have almost all the elongated shape idea, and head sizes are almost invariably large to permit the hats to come down rather far, but not to obstruct the vision. In the smaller shapes there are variations of sides coming out straight, tabs above the ears and placing a collar of about five inches around the back of the crown, turned down like the collar of an ulster when it is halfway up. Draped hats are long, too, up to eighteen inches. There are a few small draped shapes, but generally height is thought out in some way, and when the crown is high the trimming is a la colonel.

nations on equal terms with American vessels.

"A year from now," said Mr. Russell, introducing Mayor Fitzgerald, "the present mayor may be sitting in the highest councils in our land." This referred to the mayor's candidacy for the United States senate. It caused President Taft to shake with laughter.

Mayor Fitzgerald was hoarse and spoke with evident discomfort, but his speech held the attention of the foreigners. Finally his Honor began to speak in French. When he closed a roar of applause fairly shook the room.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Total contributions to date to the democratic campaign fund amount to $298,750, it was announced last night by Henry Morgenthau, chairman of the democratic national finance committee.

DR. J. J. COLTON BURIED

Funeral From Home of His Daughter

The funeral of the late Dr. J. J. Colton took place yesterday afternoon from the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. T. S. Bartlett, 48 Varnum avenue and was largely attended. Prayers were read at the home, where only the family and immediate relatives were present and this was followed by services at the Pawtucket Congregational church, where he had worshipped for many years. Rev. Frank Alger, pastor of the church, conducted the services in the course of which he delivered a tribute to deceased, saying in part:

THE LATE DR. JOHN J. COLTON

"We are met here to pay tribute to the memory of one who for over half a century was identified with this church. So long as its records remain to future generations his name will be honored as among its beneficent forces. We can hardly think of him whose spirit has left us without recalling his association, not only with the membership of this church, but with the building within whose walls this service is being held. He is conspicuous in one of those in whom we are indebted for the possession of this house of worship."

A quartet consisting of Mrs. C. R. Park, Mrs. A. T. Howe, Mr. Harry N. Cotton and Mr. Carl Mason sang "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me." The service was closed with the reading of the poem "Beyond" by Ella Wheeler Wilcox and the benediction.

The funeral arrangements were under the direction of Mr. Thomas Varnum and the ushers were Messrs. Joseph B. V. Caburn, Ralph Bean and Willard Morrison. The Lowell Institution for Savings, Ancient York Lodge of Masons and the Medical society were represented by delegations. The honorary bearers were Deacons Albert H. Morr, Percival P. Burbank, Albert M. Burnham and Norman L. Peavoy and the bearers were Messrs. Rescoe L. Chase, Harold A. Varnum, Arthur C. Varnum and W. T. S. Bartlett.

Burial was in the Woodbine cemetery where Rev. F. G. Alger read the committal service. The grave had been lined by under-hearted friends with garlands of greenery intermingled with autumn leaves and asters. J. A. Weinbeck was the undertaker.

Why Crease Your Trousers?

Ans. Because they look much neater and shapelier.

Q. Then why not keep them creased all the time?

Ans. Too much bother carrying them to the tailor. Then very often they ruin them with the hot iron.

Q. Why don't you do it yourself?

Ans. Can't do that. I'm rooming out, you see, and I don't want to bother the landlady for a hot iron.

Well, why don't you do like me? See These? I've got the "Iron-less" Pant Pressers, and I adjust them to my trousers before I go to bed, takes about two minutes, and they're all O. K. in the morning. They Certainly Are Great!

Q. Where do you get 'em?

Why, at Clothing, Hosiery, Hatters and Hardware Stores.

GENERAL DAN SICKLES

To be Evicted From His Home by Wife

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Daniel E. Sickles, wife of the Civil War veteran, last night answered the open letter which Gen. Sickles found to his comrades today, in which he declared reconciliation with her was impossible, by declaring that she would foreclose a mortgage which she held on her husband's Fifth avenue home and evict the general.

Mrs. Sickles recently paid and took over an $800 judgment against the general under which a trust company (that held it threatened to sell the old soldier's collection of curios, war relics and other valuable property.

She also holds a $40,000 mortgage on his home on which he has never paid her "one cent of interest," she says in her statement, incidentally declaring that the general has "capitalized himself as a war hero."

"I shall foreclose that mortgage, I shall evict him," her statement adds. "I hold the judgment of which he speaks in his letter, it is true. By having the mortgage transferred to me I meant to let him live out his life among his possessions as he had always held them. Now I shall sell them for what they will bring. Will any of the mythical comrades whom he quotes trust him with money to live on?"

Saturday, October 5, is Quarter Day at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House
A very large and enthusiastic gathering greeted P. Paul Marcel and his company of artists at the Opera House last night. The audience was one of the largest ever seen at this popular house and this was partly due to the well known ability of the actors who on several occasions have performed in this city, and partly to the efforts of the general manager of the company, Mr. Earl Reapure, a local man.

The play presented was "The Spring Maid," a three-act comedy from the pen of E. Legouve, a member of the Academie Francaise. The piece is interspersed with rich comedy and was well received by the many spectators who showed their appreciation with their frequent applause.

Mr. Marcel was given an ovation when he made his first appearance before the Lowells and again he received himself an artist in his part. Mrs. C. Paul Marcel, George Tinsmore, Mrs. Brouth Macdonald and Mary Ziegler also deserve mention for their part in the splendid production.

The troupe is composed of some of the best French artists available and is sure to win fame wherever it goes. Last night it was announced that the company would fulfill another engagement in Lowell on Oct. 31, at which time "The Spring Maid" will be presented.

"THE COMMON LAW"
So great has been the pressure brought to bear by an insistent public, that Mr. Robert W. Chambers, the author of so many well known novels, has finally decided to allow his latest work, "The Common Law," to be dramatized under his supervision and this new play will appear at the Opera House tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Keith's Theatre

The Bernier Brothers, appearing at Keith's, this week, are typical gaudy vaudeville artists, who blend charmingly with the very best of modern music. The scenic investment of their act is surely out of the ordinary. Eddie Ross, blackface funny man, is a strong feature, and Gordon Blair, in "Won't You Be a Leg," offers a witty moving comedy. Loreta and her troupe, a woman and a handsome Irish actor, in a series of burlesque scenes, offer something new. And besides these there are four other sterling acts. Good as for the rest of the week, phone 25.

Merrimack Square Theatre

One of the best bills of many weeks is on tap at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. Its make-up consists of a variety of first class features with a varied series of the best photo-play offerings. Miss Marie Horton who heads the program will hold a reception on the stage tomorrow afternoon at the matinee, and all her local friends are invited to attend. She is appearing in a one act drama "The Price Paid," one of the best sketches ever heretofore for some time. The other offerings which contribute to the attractiveness of the bill assist greatly to make up a nicely balanced entertainment. An excellent program has been arranged for the Sunday concert.

Academy of Music

An appreciative audience saw "The Beau Brummel Trio," Louis Hudson & Co., Devereaux & Pumo, and the pictures that make up an excellent bill at the Academy this week. All excellent offerings and are bound to please. Tuesday is "Grab Night."

REV. JAS. L. M'GUINNESS

Formerly of Lowell, Assigned to New Parish

Cardinal O'Connell has made the following transfers of curates, to go into effect at once: The Rev. William J. O'Brien, from temporary duty at the cathedral to St. Margaret's church, Campello, as assistant to the Rev. A. J. Hamilton; the Rev. Leo Logan, from St. Joseph's parish, Medford, to St. Edward's, Montello; the Rev. Daniel F. Desmond, from Our Lady of Lourdes church, Beacmont, to St. Joseph's, Medford; the Rev. James L. MacGuinness, from St. Margaret's, Beacmont, to Our Lady of Lourdes, Beacmont.

Announcement is also made that the annual collection for Catholic charitable institutions will be taken up in all the churches, Sunday, Oct. 6.

Following are the appointments which Cardinal O'Connell has made for the next few weeks:

West Lynn, Sacred Heart, dedication, Sunday, Sept. 23, 10.30 a. m.; St. John's seminary, ordination, Monday, Sept. 24, 8.30 a. m.; Belmont, St. Joseph's, corner Stone, Sunday, Oct. 6, 8 p. m.; Somerville, St. Bernard's, dedication, Sunday, Oct. 20, 10.30 a. m.; Lowell, St. Margaret's, dedication, Sunday, Oct. 26, 10.30 a. m.

Rev. Fr. MacGuinness, who was transferred from Beacmont to Beacmont is well known in Lowell. He was temporarily stationed at St. Peter's church here, and though in Lowell, many friends, he has been in Beacmont for over a year and during that time has endeavored himself to all his parishioners who greatly regret his transfer.

He was particularly interested in the young men of his parish, and these he felt his departure to Beacmont would be a loss to the church.

Rev. Fr. O'Brien, who will take up the work at St. Margaret's, Campello, is a cousin of Rev. Mr. O'Brien, P. R. of St. Patrick's in Lowell.

THE BALKAN AGITATION

Discussed by Turkish Foreign Minister

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 27.—The Balkan agitation has its center of gravity in Sofia in the opinion of the Turkish foreign minister. In the course of an interview today he said: "I have no reason to doubt the peaceful intentions of the Bulgarian cabinet and while Bulgaria remains peaceful the Balkan states will doubtless likewise. Should the agitation in Bulgaria become the government's restraint Turkey will be able to protect her integrity and independence." The foreign minister then gave further assurances of the Porte's determination to introduce reforms in all parts of the empire and said foreign advisers would be engaged for the reorganization of the central and provincial administrations.

A LONG DIVORCE FIGHT

Ends in Dr. Heim's Getting a Decree

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Judge Hardy in the superior court yesterday dismissed all the exceptions which were filed by counsel for Mrs. Irma Wright Heim, noted beauty and singer, to the decree for divorce which last March was granted her husband, Dr. Henry Francis Heim, former dentist to the Kings of Italy.

This marks the end of one of the most sensational divorce cases which has been tried in Suffolk county in recent years. Dr. Heim will receive his permanent decree of divorce Monday, a decree nisi having been granted March 29 by Judge Quinn.

Dr. Heim's alleged in his suit that his wife had misbehaved with 25-year-old Arturo Targoni, had figured in wine revels, in an exciting ride in a milk cart, and other escapades.

Mrs. Heim filed a cross libel, charging her husband with cruel and abusive treatment. She is at present living with her mother in New York. During the trial large crowds were drawn to Judge Quinn's court by the reputation of the principals and by the remarkable character of the testimony in regard to the sobriety of Mrs. Heim. Mrs. Heim denied the charges of intemperance and one point in her testimony which provoked much comment by the press was that the only time she had been in the Heim home in Florence, Italy, was when which cost $5 a barrel.

Mrs. Heim created an impression in court by her striking appearance and her fashionable garb. She appeared in a young man of his parish, and these he felt his departure to Beacmont would be a loss to the church.

received $75 a month alimony by order of the court. She contested the case bitterly and it was only after a legal battle that George A. Perkins, attorney for Dr. Heim, secured the dismissal of her exceptions to the decree of divorce.

MAN MURDERED HIS WIFE

He Also Shot Two Little Girls

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Anthony Debs, the policeman who arrested Harry K. Thaw after he killed Stanford White on the Madison Square Garden roof, shot and probably fatally injured his wife yesterday, sent bullets into the thighs of two small girls, and then committed suicide.

The shooting took place in front of the Debs home on the upper West Side after a quarrel, the outcome of which was the serving of a subpoena upon Debs summoning him to appear in the domestic relations court.

Standing on the lowest step of the stoop, Debs fired four times at his wife as she stood on the landing. One bullet went wild, another entered his wife's head and the others struck Mary Collins, 12 years old, and Katherine Hawkesworth, of the same age, neighbors.

best children, who were playing at the doorway.

Stepping over his wife's body, Debs entered his home, loaded his revolver, and shot himself in the temple. Two hours later he died in the hospital where his wife lies in a critical condition with the two children, less seriously injured, in an adjoining ward.

THE ROCHESTER FAIR

Large Attendance on the Third Day

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The attendance at the Rochester Fair yesterday, the third day, was one of the largest in its history, and everybody left the grounds last night satisfied, although it would have given thousands pleasure to see an ascension of the aeroplane which was wrecked on the grounds yesterday.

The aviator, Philip W. Page, declared that the grounds here are the hardest to rise from of any he has ever tried. He made each time for the opening in the trees at the east end of the grandstand and cleared the obstruction by only a narrow margin. The state premium was finely rendered, and the worst-looking machine. An automobile show race will be held at Cold Spring Park in the afternoon.

PRIZE WINNERS AT BABY SHOW AT PELHAM FAIR

Excellent Exhibits, Enjoyable Attractions, Baby Show and Other Big Features

A real good, old fashioned country fair, with the fortune wheel, ring toss games and African dodger, not to speak of many delightful exhibitions, is the best general description that can be given of the Pelham grange fair which took place in the town of Pelham yesterday.

Naturally being a town event, it had no huge fair grounds with the customary high board fences, grandstand and race track. It did, however, have a first rate time in store for the 700 or more people who came from the surrounding towns and cities to attend, and what is more, it was characterized by some of the finest displays of fruit, vegetables, fancy work, poetry, etc. that have been seen even at any of the larger fairs.

The grange had at their disposal Pelham hall, a large tent and the village streets. Just across the road, on the porch of the library, the Lowell Colonial orchestra took their stand and furnished lively music for the entire day. The individual members rendered various instrumental and vocal solos. On the right of the large tent was the usual African dodger. In this game, instead of the usual harmless stuffed leather balls, apples were used and patrons were given three shots for a nickel, and if apple juice is beneficial as a hair tonic, that colored gentleman should have a wonderful crop of wool in a day or two, for the spectators displayed exceptional ability as marksmen.

Ring Toss Game

Then there was the ring toss game. You got a certain number of wooden rings for a nickel and toss these at

MAYOR CONNERY

Announces That He Will Be Candidate for Re-Election in Lynn This Year—Primary Election Will Be in Nov. LYNN, Sept. 27.—Mayor William P. Connery announced yesterday that he will be a candidate for re-election. The known aspirants for his office are Senator George H. Newhall and Dr. Chas. D. S. Lovell. The primary election will be held Nov. 19.

While it has been generally expected that Mayor Connery would be a candidate to succeed himself, his plans were deferred until after the state primaries. The mayor says that he is anxious to be re-elected because of the large number of public improvements either in progress or in contemplation and he would like to carry his present position until those public works are completed.

ROGERS HALL SCHOOL STRIKERS NOT GUILTY

Has Largest Attendance in Its History

The opening exercises of the Rogers Hall school for girls were held today, with the largest attendance in the history of the popular educational institution.

Pupils from all sections of the country are among those registered, and many new faces were in evidence there this morning. After receiving their assignments the pupils turned their attention to the new gymnasium, which has been in process of construction during the vacation period. While the "gym" is not completed as yet, the finishing touches are now in order.

The gymnasium is located in the rear of the school building and is built of cream colored brick. It is of simple but beautiful design. When completed it will be one of the best gymnasiums connected with a school in the country. All the pupils, new and old, took a great interest in the new structure and they are glad to know that it will soon be ready for occupancy.

The pupils, who attended the school in former years, found a few changes there this season. The new building was one great change, while another is a change in the faculty. Miss Annette Warner, director of the art department, will assist the principal, Miss Olive S. Parsons, in the executive work. Miss Warner comes to Rogers Hall school from Fitchburg State Normal school, where she was engaged in similar duties for several years.

Miss Eleanor Orent, another new teacher, will be in charge of the department of mathematics. Miss Orent graduated from the women's college of Baltimore, and has done post graduate work at Radcliffe college.

Boston Elevated Strikers Were Discharged

The first day of superior court trials for persons convicted in the police courts of Middlesex county of causing disturbances during the strike of the carmen, before Judge Chase at East Cambridge yesterday, resulted in one finding of an assault on a police officer, two verdicts of not guilty, and a plea of nolo, which was accepted on payment of $10 and costs.

Thomas J. Collins, who was given three months in the house of correction by Judge Palmer in the Cambridge district court for assault on Sgt. Ellis of the Cambridge police, during a strike riot, was found guilty after a jury trial. He will be sentenced today.

John D. Haley, who was given a month in the Somerville police court for delaying a car, July 2, was found not guilty by a jury, as was Thomas F. Mahoney, who had been ordered to pay a fine of $25 by the same court for disturbance on a car on the night of June 7.

Joseph F. O'Brien, a "toy" man who was fined $10 in the Cambridge district court for assault and battery on Jacob Pink, a passenger, on June 25 pleaded nolo, and was allowed to go in payment of $10 and expenses.

On trial when the court adjourned was Thomas Carrell, of Watertown, who is charged with throwing stones in a disturbance in Watertown, hitting Officer Brown. He was given three months in the house of correction by the lower court.

GOV. WOODROW WILSON

Tendered Reception in Boston Today

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Thoroughly rested and ready for another day of vigorous campaigning, Gov. Woodrow Wilson had before him today a brief program in this city.

The governor was to attend a public reception for him at 10.30 o'clock. His main speech of the day was arranged for the noon hour at Tremont temple, a church and auditorium. The governor was scheduled to leave Boston at 2.30 for Bridgeport, where he will make a speech tonight, returning to New York at 11 p. m.

While in this city the governor expressed regret that he would not have time to visit Harvard university. He said he was deeply pleased that President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard had issued a statement in support of his candidacy. It is probable that Governor Wilson will speak again at Lawrence, Lowell and Cambridge on his way to Maine and Vermont in later days of the campaign.

SHOT TWO BARMAIDS

American Named Titus Also Shot Two Men

LONDON, Sept. 27.—A so-called American shot and seriously wounded four persons with a revolver today and for a time caused a semi-panic in the West End. The man, whose name is Titus and who claims citizenship of the United States but speaks English poorly, had a dispute with a barmaid of a hotel where he was staying in the Tottenham court road. He drew a revolver and shot her and a second barmaid and then rushed to the street. On the way out he shot down two men who tried to stop him and also fired at a third man. He was finally overpowered by a passerby and arrested.

MAN JILTED AT ALTAR

Bride Changed Mind and Man Collapsed

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Everything was in readiness for the marriage of Arthur L. Bascom and Miss Ada L. Powers, formerly of Brookline, at the Copple Square hotel last night, when the bride changed her mind.

The groom was at the altar, the minister was standing by, look in hand, when the father of the bride rushed in and whispered to the "happy man" that she had changed her mind.

"She has changed her mind," he said. Thereupon the groom faltered.

The wedding celebration grew cold while the guests looked over the groom. Finally a doctor was summoned.

It was only after the doctor had worked at top speed and used heroic measures that Bascom was brought back to some semblance of life. Meanwhile, the waiters in the private dining room hired by the groom, had been told that their services were no longer needed, and departed, wondering.

Miss Powers, daughter of William H. Powers, formerly lived at 285 Commonwealth avenue, Brookline, but a newspaper reporter was told last night that the family had moved away several months ago. They are at present staying at Altair, where no reason is assigned by the girl's mother for the sudden change of heart. Miss Powers is reported to be ill in bed and under the care of a doctor.

HUMPER CROPS

In the West Are Opening Homes To a Number of Orphans From the East

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Rumper crops in the west are opening homes to orphans from the east, prosperity and plenty so influencing the hearts of the farmers, it is said, that they are impelled to let a little sunshine in their own lives enter the lives of others.

Sixty youngsters ranging from one to 14 years from New York foundling asylums passed through Chicago yesterday on their way to Omaha and other western points where they are to find homes with farmers.

A NEW METHOD

Of Drafting Baseball Players From Minor Leagues Is Suggested by Pres. Ebbetts

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A new method of drafting baseball players for class A leagues will be recommended to the clubs at the next national commission meeting by President Ebbetts of the Brooklyn club. He declares that the present "grab-bag" plan is all wrong, being unfair alike to the weak major league clubs, which need new material and to the good minor league players who fail to graduate into fast company. Ebbetts' plan is as follows:

Let the American league, for instance, take the odd numbers 1, 3 and 5, etc. for each club while the National club are numbered 2, 4, 6, etc. In accordance with the order in which the teams finish. Give number 15 and 16, the tall end clubs first chance at all the players subject to draft. In that way each team will have an excellent chance to secure desirable talent and will not be compelled to take players that really are not needed.

Regent David Hogan and the other members of Industry council, Royal Arcanum, are arranging for a smoke, talk and musical to be held in the near future.

EIGHT HOURS' BATTLE

Before Campa Captured Town of Altar

NOGALES, Arizona, Sept. 27.—The first details of Emilio Campa's operations in the Altar district of Mexico were brought here last night by F. E. Hawksworth of Los Angeles, in charge of a placer mine in the Las Palomas field. The capture of the town of Altar by Campa was effective after a battle lasting eight hours, according to Hawksworth. Campa lost 12 killed and wounded. Hawksworth was compelled to drive his automobile 150 miles with several of Campa's wounded men and some rifles, Campa enforcing his demand for speed by striking the American in the face with a quail. The rebels attacked Altar they went to Caboro, 12 miles west, which was taken without resistance and looted. Hawksworth was compelled to go with the main party under command of Lieut. Enciso. At the outskirts of Bahua they learned that the rebels made a night trip to the Sierra Colorado mine.

Campa, according to the American, made a violent anti-American speech at Plaza and at Altar and said he would kill Americans to bring about intervention.

Lewis—Cavigan CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 27.—Two boys, aspiring for top honors in their class, middleweight, Willie Lewis of New York and Tommy Cavigan of Cleveland, were matched last night for 12 rounds before the Tuxedo club here on Oct. 3. They are to fight at 159 pounds.

MADE A NEW WORLD'S RECORD VAN DYKE AND KEATING WORKED

Grace Trims All the Harness Stars in Race at Columbus, Ohio,
Yesterday

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27.—Sensational racing marked the program at the Driving park yesterday afternoon, a new world's record for a fifth heat being established in the free-for-all trot when the Cleveland mare Grace defeated Dudie Archdale, Billy Burk and Bruce Girle.

The chestnut colt Adon, favorite in the betting, beat a high-class field in the Horse Review Futurity for 2-year-old trotters, this race being the fastest of the season by a 3-year-old.

The Cox pacer, Braumhan Baughman, repeated his Detroit performance by defeating Don Prouto and others in the 2:05 race, while the 2:15 trot, in which the largest field of the season started, was carried over until today; after four heats.

A light rain fell during the forenoon, but not enough to interfere with the time, the track being very fast.

The pooling on the futurity was very heavy, Adon bringing $100, Fair Virginia $70, Brighton B $50, Princess Todd $45, Manrico $20, Mahometta $15 and the field $20. The Ohio Billy, Tregantles Nell, was the early pacer in the first heat, but failed on the upper turn, where Adon went to the front.

The finish was a strenuous one, Brighton B and Manrico coming very fast, but Adon was best and beat them in 2:04 1/2. Princess Todd, winner of the Horseman Futurity at Detroit last week, finishing fourth.

Junior Watts carried Adon very fast in the first half of the second heat, but the clip was too much for him and he dropped out on the upper turn. Brighton B and Manrico made it interesting for the favorite, but were a trifle short. The winner is owned by C. H. Rudwick of New York. He took a fast record as a yearling under the name of Dandy G.

Like the futurity, the free-for-all trot was a heavy betting race, Dudie Archdale selling first choice at $100, Billy Burk bringing $70, Grace $25 and Bruce Girle $15.

Dadie Archdale had an easy time winning the first heat, Billy Burk breaking in the stretch, while both Grace and Bruce Girle took things easy. In the second Grace raced Dudie Archdale all the way and beat her by a nose in 2:04 1/2, a new record for the daughter of Peter the Great.

In the third heat Billy Burk had just a little on Grace at the finish in 2:06, but she came back and beat the stallion in the fourth in 2:07 1/2. Grace set out with Dudie Archdale in the fifth to make the race, but McDevitt kept Grace close by and in a driving finish beat the field in 2:06 1/2, a new world's record for a fifth heat. Grace is only 3 years old.

Braumhan Baughman was a better than even money favorite over the field for the 2:05 pace, and he made good after the California pacer Don Prouto had beaten him the first heat in 2:05 1/2.

Fifteen horses, mostly from the half-mile tracks, were started in the 2:15 trot, with Mack's Mack favorite. The favorite was not a factor except in the third heat, when he finished third after leading into the stretch. The first two heats went to Rainbow, then the Minneapolis mare Jean Arion took a pair, after which the race went over until today.

The feature of the card today was the 2-year-old trotting division of the Horse Review Futurity, in which Dillon Asworthy, Lord Allen, Lord Brussels, Don Cheneault and other fast colts will start. The 2:04 pace will bring out Evelyn W., Independence Boy, Don Lunsford, Earl Jr. and others.

The fast Canadian pacer The Red was a candidate, but was suffering last evening from lung fever, with little hope entertained for his recovery. The summary:

Former N. E. League Twirlers in Yesterday's Red Sox - New York Game—Score 15-12

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—The Red Sox approached within one game of the American league record for games won in a season by winning from New York yesterday, 15 to 12, in a contest that developed into a farce. Boston has six games still to play in which to better the record of 192 games made by the Athletics two years ago. Yesterday's game was the last of the American league season in Boston.

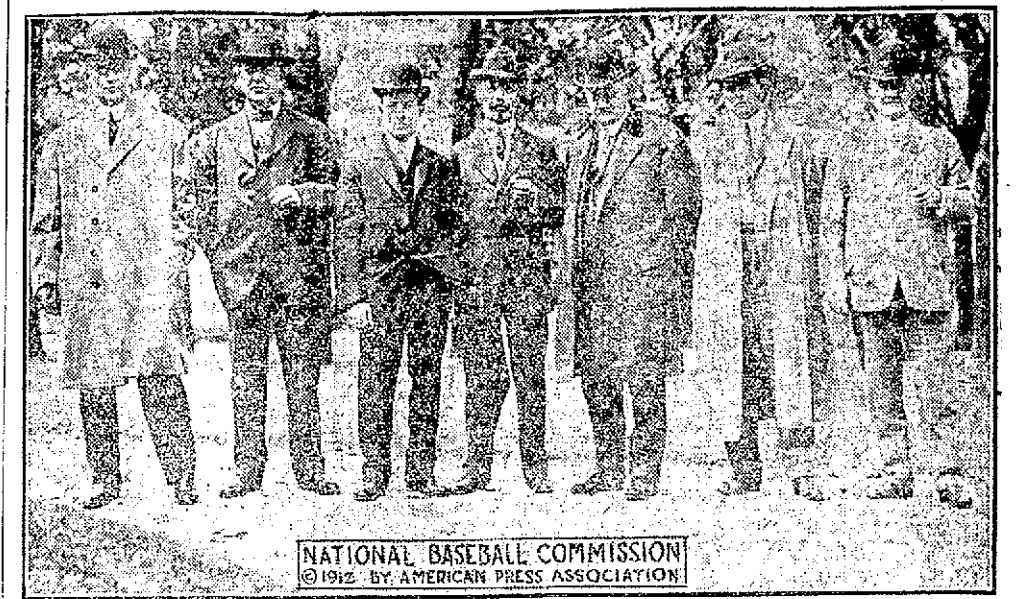

New York got away with a big lead by hitting Van Dyke and added runs at Pape's expense. Boston nunched into with Keating's passes in the fifth and sixth inning and was hitting him in the eighth when he was replaced by Caldwell. The latter passed four men and Thompson, who succeeded him, passed two, forcing in runs. On account of darkness the game was called after eight innings. The score:

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Although backstop than the "Big Chief," Joe "Big Chief" Meyers is the regular says that the youngster has a better catcher of the Giants, there is a possibility that Art Wilson, the second string man, may do the bulk of the work behind the bat in the world's series. Probably no backstop in the National league has shown as much improvement as has the Giants' youngster after this season. A no less authority than Joe Thinks, the Cubs' great shortstop, believes that Wilson is a better

GIANTS CINCH PENNANT
By Winning Yesterday's Double Header

The championship of the National league is now settled definitely in favor of the New York Giants for a second successive year. All chances of the Chicago Cubs displacing the leaders was removed by New York's double defeat of Boston yesterday, although at the same time the Cubs were defeating Cincinnati.

Giants Humble Braves
NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—New York clinched the pennant here yesterday when they won both ends of a double header from Boston. The scores were 8 to 2 and 4 to 0. In the first game New York knocked Perkins out of the box in three innings. Matthews eased up when his team mates procured him a good lead, result of Boston's 10 hits being made in the last four innings. Fletcher's fielding was the feature of this game.

Remarkable pitching of Demaree, a recruit from Mobile, featured the second game. This was Demaree's big league debut. He shut out Boston with seven scatterings hits, issuing only one pass and fanned nine men. In two innings the visitors opened on him with an extra base hit, but could not score.

Cubs Also Take Two
CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Chicago defeated Cincinnati twice yesterday, 11 to 10 and 10 to 0. Cheney was credited with both games. The visitors routed Loxander in the ninth of the first game and scored 10 runs, going one ahead of the Cubs. Dayton's wildness in the locally ninth enabled the Cubs to win. The second game was called on account of darkness at the end of the sixth inning.

Pittsburgh 7, St. Louis 5
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—After St. Louis had obtained a good lead in the game yesterday Pittsburgh came from the rear and won 7 to 5. Every Pittsburgh player was at the bat in the eighth inning.

Phillies Cop Twice
BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Philadelphia won a double header from Brooklyn yesterday, shutting out the locals in both games. The visitors hit freely while their own pitchers, Alexander and Seaton, were in fine form. Miller of Philadelphia made a total of seven hits in the two games, including two triples and a double. Curtis was driven from the box in the fourth inning of the first game. A feature of the second game was Ransom's attempted steal of second when that base was already occupied by Erwin.

Ball Players Receive Rewards
In looking over the official records for the 1912 season it is clearly evident that in the batting department at least the players have been far exceeding past records. The reason for the unusually heavy hitting can be readily understood by any regular patron at any of the baseball parks throughout the country.

In practically every park of any importance there is located one of the famous Bull Durham signs. Every player hitting the ball with a fairly hard hit during a regularly scheduled league game receives $50. Any player making a home run in one of these parks receives seventy-two packages of Bull Durham smoking tobacco.

During the 1912 season there have been 208 hits recorded against the Bull Durham signs which hits have netted for the fortunate players the enormous amount of $10,400 in cash. There have been approximately 2500 home runs made in these parks for which the heavy hitters have received 180,000 packages of Bull Durham smoking tobacco.

A special report of the work in the New England league is given herewith.

Providence, Mass.—The bull sign was not hit. There have been 13 home runs made in the park for which the heavy hitters have received 1096 packages of Bull Durham tobacco.

Worcester, Mass.—The bull sign was hit on June 20th by Albin Carlstrom of the Lawrence club. There have been 3 home runs made in the park for which the heavy hitters have received 648 packages of Bull Durham tobacco.

League totals.—The Bull Durham sign in the New England league parks have been hit eleven times, netting for the fortunate players the sum of $550 in cash. There have been 200 home runs made in these parks and as a result the 112 stickers have received 11,400 packages of Bull Durham tobacco.

Money deposited in The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank on or before October 5th draws interest from that date.

THE LOCAL MILLINERY OPENINGS

Attracted a Very Large Number
of Women to the Stores
This Afternoon

Today and tomorrow the women of Lowell will have an opportunity to witness excellent displays of millinery for the annual fall openings are being held in the different establishments in this city. Below will be found a description of some of the attractive features in the different establishments:

At Miss Genevieve Roarke's
Miss Roarke's millinery opening will take place today and tomorrow and her parlors are filled with rare and we might say ultra fashionable millinery. The lovers of fashionable millinery find this shop a most interesting place to visit. Miss Roarke's conception and knowledge of the millinery art is already established and very little comment is necessary. Her display of beautiful hats and bonnets are copies from the best houses in London and Paris as well as this country, and with her own original ideas make the exhibit well worthy of any lady's inspection. A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies to visit this attractive shop which will convince the customer that the styles are unusual and unlike those shown elsewhere. To say that everything is most beautiful is putting it very mildly. Should you not find just what you like, you will always find that she is ready, willing and anxious to assist you in selecting just what would be most becoming. There is no trouble in getting to her establishment; simply call at the Chalfoux building, take the elevator and you are landed in an instant at her Hat Shop.

Rose Jordan Hartford
Mrs. Hartford's millinery display is on in full force, and the ladies of the city and suburbs are out in great numbers in anticipation of the beautiful display of fall and winter millinery exhibited by Mrs. Hartford. This store has always been one of the most attractive in our city, and her very large patronage during the last seasons have proved that fact. The fashionably dressed ladies of the city make it a point to select their millinery from her popular establishment. Her display windows are a big attraction in themselves, beautifully arranged for inspection. There can be found the latest in millinery designed from pattern hats, also all that is fashionable in the millinery world. She cordially invites everybody to call whether they desire to purchase or not. The exhibit is worth going a great distance to see and will continue throughout the rest of the week. Don't fail to attend for you will travel far before you witness a display equal to that which she has prepared for your inspection.

Mrs. Van Hise

Mrs. A. Van Hise's millinery parlor at 48 Bellevue street, though somewhat removed from the busy trading center of the city, is a place where many fashionable ladies always go to select and have their millinery made to order. Mrs. Van Hise knows the business thoroughly, and she has a generous portion of the millinery trade. Any lady wishing to get choice millinery at moderate prices will make no mistake by calling at this up-to-date milliner's residence.

Margaret M. Pike

Miss Pike, who has her quarters at 40 Kirk street, next to the Lowell High school, has a very pretty display. Miss Pike is one of the best known and most stylish milliners in our city having for several years been at the head of some of the largest millinery establishments in the city. She was for the past several seasons located in the Chalfoux building, and this is the first public display in her new quarters. Miss Pike makes a specialty of creating her own designs, and she always does it to the satisfaction of her patrons. A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Lowell to call and inspect the display in her new quarters where they will cheerfully be shown some of the very best designs in millinery. The exhibit continues throughout the week.

Gertrude B. Allen

Gertrude B. Allen is not in the millinery business but in the embroidery and art work business, which is closely allied to the millinery business. She is located in the Chalfoux building, 22 Central street, and on the same floor with Miss Genevieve A. Roarke, the milliner. Miss Allen will be pleased to have the ladies call and see the beautiful display of embroidery and art work. Take the elevator.

The Fashion

This ever popular millinery establishment made a very beautiful display both in their window and in the interior of their store with a very choice and stylish autumn and winter millinery display and their store was visited by a constant stream of admiring ladies who, judging from the many complimentary remarks made, thought that the exhibit here was one of the best to be seen in the city. These popular millinery parlors have always been noted for the fine line of mourning goods which is carried in conjunction with other lines of fashionable millinery. The Fashion is under the management of Miss Margaret Hartford, and she is assisted by a number of expert milliners. The display was never more beautiful than it is this year. Don't fail to call when you are out inspecting, as you are cordially welcome.

Hard & Garland

While located on the second floor in the Newhall building, corner of John and Merrimack streets, these beautiful parlors are so well known that they receive a generous share of the public patronage as the goods are more of the made-to-order style, and hundreds of ladies find just what they want in material, frames and shapes. They make a specialty of trimming hats, and it makes no difference where the hat is bought, or how cheap is the shape their knowledge of the millinery art enables them to turn over to their customer a fashionably trimmed and rich looking hat. The ladies are invited to inspect their goods. The opening will continue throughout today and tomorrow.

Miss Katherine A. Tancred

Miss Tancred, on the second floor of the Wynnan's Exchange building has a very pretty display in fashionable millinery. Her parlors are well worth inspection. Miss Tancred is an expert in the millinery art at designing, and has years of experience, having been in charge of the Alex. Abels establishment. She knows how to do things in millinery work that has made her one of the most popular and leading milliners of the city. Call and see the display, and you will find your time profitably spent. The opening will continue throughout the week.

Ostroff & Sousa

Ostroff & Sousa of Gorham street have this season a beautiful millinery display, which is most pleasing to the eye. The ladies who are looking for seasonable fall and winter millinery will find the style and fashion to suit them at this well stocked house, and they will find that the most interesting and pleasing part of the visit is the prices will fit almost any lady's purse. Be sure and visit their store, as all are cordially invited.

Rose G. Caisse

Miss Rose G. Caisse, of 53 Central street, Central block, never fails to have a very large and carefully selected stock of furs. She is the leading furrier of the city, and is an expert at her business. You will make no mistake if you take time enough to inspect her beautiful line of furs, and she can always give you some valuable information as to what can be done in the alteration of furs. Today and tomorrow are opening days.

Hend & Shaw

This well known firm, located on John street, had their formal opening last week, but always being full of enterprise and in the fashionable swim have decided to continue the exhibit this week. In the window display and shop may be seen beautiful hats and bonnets, among them being imported pattern hats. The price is one of the things that makes this millinery establishment one of the best patronized in Lowell. If you were unable to get around last week, don't lose the opportunity this week. You will be pleased if you call.

Kittie Blennerhassett

Miss Blennerhassett has her millinery parlors in the Central block, and has been permanently established in her present quarters, by her knowledge of the business and her courteous treatment of her patrons at all times. She is a great favorite among the fashionably dressed ladies of our city, and she can count on the very large patronage which she has always received. Her specialty like some of the other milliners, is more in the nature and character of made to order hats, although she always has a very pretty exhibit of the latest pattern hats. If you desire to see the exhibit take the elevator. Her millinery opening continues throughout the week.

Leah Lalumiere

Miss Lalumiere's, in the Old City Hall building, 226 Merrimack street, is a place that never fails to attract the throngs of ladies who are out inspecting the millinery displays, and there are few milliners who have the knack of arranging beautiful creations in the milliners' art as does Miss Lalumiere. Her display rooms are certainly entrancing, and the general appearance is such as to command the admiration of all of her visitors. Miss Lalumiere has the most stylish creations of Paris, London and New York designs in autumn and winter styles, and you can get just what you desire if you are looking for something stylish. The opening days are today and tomorrow. All ladies are invited to attend.

New York Cloak and Suit Store

The New York Cloak and Suit store on John street is the centre of attraction in our city today. This large establishment has just undergone a wonderful transformation in general appearance. The store has been enlarged by adding more than double its usual space. The second floor is furnished for a fitting and display room of their very beautiful stock of autumn and winter clothing, and there is not a finer appointed cloak and suit establishment in New England than that of the New York Cloak and Suit store. The window display is nothing short of a revelation to the ladies who admire the latest and most up-to-date in everything of this season's wearing apparel. The windows are most beautifully decorated with autumn foliage, and in each window there are two mammoth jardiniere filled with the choicest autumn cut flowers, and the effect is certainly beautiful. But that is not all, for there is a variety of gowns displayed that are of the very latest design, beautiful in appearance, stylish and are masterpieces of the dressmakers' art, and worthy of the inspection of customers. There are opera cloaks and capes and in short everything that would go to supply the wants of people of generous means. The day is past when people must go to Boston to get a beautiful costume or anything that would go to make up the best dressed lady in the land. The interior of the store on the first floor is in keeping with the magnificent window display, and for the use and comfort of the ladies while making the tour of inspection on the different floors, this progressive business house, has installed an elevator. Mr. Emmott, the manager, is receiving many compliments for the rich and rare treat that he has prepared for the ladies, and he richly deserves all the pleasant things that are said about him during the opening. It would take more space than we can devote to attempt to describe any particular costume, but all are cordially invited to attend, whether they desire to purchase or not, and the corps of courteous ladies in attendance will esteem it a favor to show the patrons anything that they may wish to inspect.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Intention on the part of attorneys for the Kansas Taft electors to press the litigation over the right of Roosevelt men to remain on the republican electoral ticket was indicated here today despite reports that a compromise had been reached. The practice is not to print the transcript unless the case is to be urged before the court for decision.

GOV. WILSON SCORES ROOSEVELT

Says Colonel Permitted Purchase by U. Steel Trust of Tenn. Iron and Coal Co.

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Governor Wilson in a speech here today before a great crowd charged that former President Roosevelt had done "a blunder thing to build up an irresistible power" in permitting the purchase by the United States Steel Corporation of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. "I do not wonder that the leader of the third party thinks that trusts are inevitable," said the governor. "He never found any way of checking them and he thought it was inevitable that the steel corporation should buy the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. and that the chief executive should consent to an irresistible power. If it is inevitable that the government should yield to these powers the sooner we know it the better and I am sorry that any man who has had experience in this great office should have come out of it with that conviction. He despises of checking the power and all he suggests is that we try our best that we make the power good, pitiful, kind and just, by which we transfer our own affairs to those who by today have combined against us."

The governor made several references in his speech to Col. Roosevelt, declaring that even if he were elected he would have "no third party congress" behind him.

"He will be a lonely official" declared the governor. "Not that he minds it because he finds himself in good com-

MRS. DORA GILBERT POISONED

She Was the Former Wife of Rosenthal and an Important Witness in Becker Case

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The reported mysterious poisoning of Mrs. Dora Gilbert, former wife of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, received official confirmation today in a letter addressed to Mayor Gaynor by Dr. L. R. Hibbe, who was called in to treat the woman. He gives no details of her illness but avers that he was denied admission to Bellevue hospital after she had been removed there and demands an immediate investigation.

"The fact that the woman is an important witness for District Attorney William in the Becker case," says the letter, "makes my request for an immediate and thorough investigation an imperative necessity. Coming along so soon after the notorious police intimidation of other witnesses it reflects not only upon the hospital authorities but seems to be another intimation that minor members of your administration are endeavoring to protect Becker in every possible way."

Mrs. Gilbert has recovered.

JOB E. HEDGES WAS NOMINATED

He Was the Choice of New York Republicans for Governor on the Third Ballot

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Job E. Hedges of New York was nominated as republican candidate for governor of New York today. Three ballots were taken. Hedges led from the first and when the third ballot showed him, steadily gaining strength the delegates, blocked to him so fast that the tally clerk could not keep the record. Before the vote could be announced the motion to make the nomination unanimous was put and carried with a roar of enthusiasm.

The delegates picked Hedges from a list of 11 candidates placed before them today after days of fruitless effort to combine outside the convention hall upon a man who might get enough votes to nominate on the first ballot.

James W. Wadsworth, Jr., the young former speaker of the assembly, gave

WIFE HELD FOR SHOOTING

It is Alleged She Fired on Her Husband

NIAGARA FALLS, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Mary M. Hanner is technically under arrest here last night on a charge of having shot her husband, George Hanner, on the night of Sept. 12, with intent to kill.

The warrant for Mrs. Hanner's arrest was issued by Judge Smith at North Tonawanda late yesterday.

The shooting of the Hanners occurred shortly before midnight on Sept. 12, while they were en route from Niagara Falls to Buffalo in an automobile.

Mrs. Hanner told the police the shots seemed to come from a lumber yard at the side of the road. The nature of the wounds and the direction taken by the bullets, the police believed, made this impossible, and they began work on the mystery on the theory that the shots were fired by some one in the automobile.

Hanner, who was sufficiently recovered from his injuries to leave the hospital yesterday, attended the John Doe proceedings at Scotch Tonawanda yesterday and offered his services to the police. He expressed the belief that the shooting was not done by his wife.

"THE WORLD IN BALTIMORE"

Bethany House and Native Mohammedan Shrine

FOLLOWING the footsteps of nations and cities that have done successful advertising with expositions, the Christian Church has evolved an exposition suited to its needs—an exposition to exploit great enterprises of Christian Missions in all parts of the world. Unlike the usual type of "World's Fair," these church expositions are not only religious, but are educational. They are called "Missionary Expositions" and they have been designed to show to the people of the Christian world the gigantic strides made by missionaries in far-off countries.

The Missionary exposition originated in England, where the scenic features were greatly developed, but as soon as Americans took hold of the idea this phase was extended so that the great missionary exposition that is being planned for presentation in the different cities of the United States is a reproduction of the scenic attractiveness of every land and climate. Two of these expositions have thus far been held in the United States, the "World in Boston" in the spring of 1911 and the "World in Cincinnati" in the spring of 1912. The "World in Baltimore" will be the third and it will be conducted from October 25 to November 30. Chicago has asked for the exposition for next year and Pittsburghers are discussing the holding of one after Chicago.

These expositions are conducted by the Missionary Education Movement, and in the presentation of the accomplishments of the missionaries in the field by means of these expositions it has been planned to carry the work into every large city in this country. Those who have seen "Midways" of "World's Fairs" can most readily comprehend the character of these World Expositions. These "Midways" are made up of reproductions of scenery and native life in the various parts of the world and are populated by natives. In the World Expositions, however, while there are reproductions of native life and scenery, the natives are impersonated by the local church people.

The great feature of these expositions is the Pageant of Darkness and Light. In the public mind Pageants are great spectacular processions, but this particular pageant is presented on the stage with all the accessories of beautiful scenery, costumes and lighting effect. In general makeup and in the words and music, it is closely allied to grand opera.

Instead of acts there are episodes. Episode 1 represents the North. The scene is an Indian camp in the far Northwest. In the foreground, the braves are lounging around the fires, and the women are busy working. In the background are the wigwags. The chief and his squaw are grieving over the loss of their little daughter who strayed from the camp three days before. To the camp comes a band of Eskimos to trade. The Medicine Man incites the braves to kill the traders and take their goods. Just as they are about to do so, a missionary arrives bringing the lost child. Immediately the murderous plan is abandoned and the Chief is so glad that his little one has been found that he not only becomes friendly toward the missionary, but instructs his tribe to give ear to what the white man has to say.

Episode 2 represents the South. The scene is in the outskirts of Ujiji, where Livingston is residing for a while after long journeys. His men are building a mission house. The wife of Abdulloh, the slave-raider, solicits help for her wounded husband. Livingston ministers to him bodily and spiritually, and receives as his fee a number of slaves, whom he at once sets free. During midday rest Livingston is full of thoughts of home. A runner comes panting in with news of the coming of white men. He is followed by a second and a third. Then Stanley enters with his followers. He begs Livingston to return with him. Livingston's men hang upon his words. He is sorely tempted, but—no, he cannot go until his work is done. And as he says the words his men break into a song of thanksgiving.

Episode 3 represents the East. This is in two scenes. Scene 1 is in a city in India. A crowd surrounds the mission house, clamoring for the return to her relatives of a child-wife, whom the missionaries have been educating. A Government official comes out with the missionaries, who appeal to him on behalf of the child. He can do nothing. The child flees down the street, the relatives follow, capture her and return in triumph. Scene 2 is in the outskirts of a town. A native procession is going to a temple, with songs, etc. There enters a funeral procession, leading a young woman to the pyre. The missionary party watches in despair, and pray for help. The ceremonies proceed, and just as the pyre is about to be lighted the Government official strides in, with a proclamation doing away with the suttee. The missionary party breaks into a jubilant chant.

Episode 4 represents the West. This scene is a coral beach in Hawaii. Behind is the volcano Kilauea. A wedding group is dispersing in the sunshine. The volcano roars. One recalls the fact that when Pele, the Goddess of the lake of fire, is angered, she sends her priest to claim victims to appease her wrath. The priest is seen on the mountain-side. He claims the bridegroom. The bride begs to be chosen, too. Instead, the priest claims a child playing unconsciously among the flowers. As he is about to lead them to their doom, Queen Kapule and her priests and all her works. The priest curses her. She bids him lead her to the crater, and thereafter the fashion of Huijah on Carmel—she taunts and defies the goddess, and breaks the power of Pele forever.

Episode 5 is the finale. At the close of Episode 4 the choir sings a chorale: "From North and South and East and West they come, they come." As they sing they ascend the steps of the platform, carrying palms in their hands and arranging themselves upon it in a great semi-circle. Then the various contingents from the other episodes, headed by their missionaries, enter to a quick marching song, "We come from the gloom of the shadowy trail," and arrange themselves in the form of a great star. Then they sing a hymn, beginning, "In Christ there is no East or West." And finally at a given signal, the audience rises and all their performers, audience and orchestra unite in singing the long metre doxology, "Praise God, from Whom all Blessings Flow."

The dominant idea of the exposition is to show the native life in non-Christian lands in order to impress the contrast with life in the countries which demonstrate the work of missions and the influence of Christianity upon the people and upon the customs of those countries.

nearly true to life as it is possible to make it. There is a Japanese garden, Buddhist temple, a tea house and stewards in native costume give an accurate presentation of what a visitor to that country would find. A tall pagoda dominates the Chinese village and other structures that form the group include a temple, a chair house, a Chinese house and a Christian chapel. In the latter the missionaries are seen teaching the natives. In this chapel are the books used by the missionaries, while on the walls are the banners and circulars in Chinese language used in the field work.

In the India section the great Towers of Silence are shown. There is also a wayside shrine, a Kali temple, a bar and, most interesting of all, Zenana, the women's apartments in the home of an Indian gentleman. The African house, an open space where the various native industries are shown, an idol's house and the type of home used by the missionary in that land.

While the Mohammedan lands are represented in smaller spaces, considerable attention has been devoted to medical missions. Although the medical men of the Christian nations have received but scant courtesy from the powers in the heathen world, their work is becoming more and more appreciated by the natives who have been given relief instead of having their agonies prolonged as is usually the case where the native doctor is called into consultation. In the booths devoted to these lands are shown the methods pursued by the medical missionaries and by the native doctors—a sharp contrast that cannot but impress those who see it.

Not the least interesting feature of the exposition is the Home Mission which is nearly as extensive as that of the Foreign Mission, and a great deal of space is devoted to depicting the evangelization of this great country. The section devoted to the American Indians is of particular interest for it brings to the mind vividly the great work that has been accomplished West of the Mississippi. This section shows a scene on the plains with an Indian village. There is the tepee and Medicine Man. There also, to illustrate the advance that has been made, is shown a typical Indian chapel of today. Such chapels as these are to be found on every one of the Indian reservations. Next to this section is the "Frontier" where one gets a glimpse of the life of the pioneer. There is the log cabin and the sod house, while a prairie wagon indicates that his stay may be but temporary.

In another part of the Home Mission section is shown a portion of the immigrant station at Ellis Island. Here one sees the natives of Europe in their old and picturesque costumes passing through the portals into the "melting pot" to become American citizens and help carry the Word to the far corners of the earth.

Although these scenic features are important, another great department of the exposition is the presenting of plays dealing with missionary life; the idea being to thus present the lessons to be gained from the work of those in the field. One of these plays is the annual pilgrimage of the Moslems to sacred City of Mecca. In this play more than 200 persons take part. Another play entitled "Two Thousand Miles for a Book," deals with an incident in connection with the Nez Perce Indians. The story is that many years ago this tribe in the far Northwest heard of a "Book of Heaven" owned by the white man and it was told to them that this book would satisfy their yearning for knowledge of the future world, and at the same time tell them how to live. At a great council, delegates were selected to go East to search for the book. When they reached St. Louis, which was then but a military post, they found a missionary, and this missionary with the "Book" accompanied them to their tribe.

In addition to these plays there will be numerous tableaux and many reels of moving pictures so that the average visitor to one of these expositions will obtain a vast fund of information as to what is being done in the spreading of the Gospel.

Whales and Their Whereabouts

THERE are millions of monsters which traverse the briny seas in great "schools," from the frozen water of the Far North to the warm water of the tropical seas. These great collections of creatures are known as cetaceans, and include the whales, dolphins, porpoises and grampuses. In general appearance they resemble fishes—and are lists of squids, various kinds of small fish, shrimps, etc. The manner of taking in this varied assortment of appetizers is quite interesting. The great creature swims along near the surface of the ocean with his huge mouth liberally open, and the great strips of "balen" hanging from the roof of the mouth on each side like called "suet" by the majority of people, but several peculiar characteristics possessed by them distinctly separate them from the fish family. Fishes generally possess scales, while those of the whale family are placed laterally. Whales have no anal fins which fishes possess, and the side or pectoral fins in whales are very different from those of the "finny" tribe. The fishes breathe by the help of gills, but whales breathe air without any gills, requiring them to come to the surface of the waters for every inspiration. Another great difference between fishes and the whales is that the former are reproduced in the great majority of cases, by spawning, their eggs hatching in gravel beds, or while floating on the water's surface in large shoals, while the latter animals reproduce their young, as all other mammals do—by bringing them forth alive. The above characteristics of the whales place them in the mammal class, as has already been intimated.

Many people have an idea that a "whale" is a great sea monster, one hundred feet or more in length, with a mouth opening capable of taking in a large row boat with its occupants and swallowing the whole affair. The fact is that the actual throat opening of the true whales is not more than eight or ten inches in diameter, while the great jaws may open a vertical distance of ten feet or so. The reason for this state of things is very clear when we find out upon what sort of food these great creatures feed. Taking the right whale as typical example, the food of this animal consists of squids, various kinds of small fish, shrimps, etc. The manner of taking in this varied assortment of appetizers is quite interesting. The great creature swims along near the surface of the ocean with his huge mouth liberally open, and the great strips of "balen" hanging from the roof of the mouth on each side like great coarse, hair-covered curtains.

When he has succeeded in collecting a goodly number of the small fish in the mass of water which has been brought into his great mouth opening, down comes the enormous upper jaw as the sides of the lower one bend up to meet it, and there is a rush of water through the balen which acts as a sieve, when the little fish find themselves strained from their natural element and hastily invited into the place too small for "Jonah" to go. This is a unique way of fishing sure enough.

This "balen" is not present in the sperm whale, and is most abundant in the "right" whale, and in the Greenland, bow-head or Polar whale, which is practically the same animal as the "right" whale. The substance is erroneously called "whalebone," as it is not bone at all, but a substance resembling equally horn and hair, and used in place of teeth by the whales, which are toothless. This balen is placed in rows, compactly placed, and hanging from the roof of the mouth, as stated, and having most hair at its extremities, as when the jaws are opened the ends of the balen are fastened apart, requiring more hair to act as a sieve for the small fish which might otherwise escape. Over two hundred and fifty strips of balen have been counted on each side of a whale's mouth, which would weigh about one thousand pounds. "Think of an animal which can carry nearly half a ton of material about in its mouth to do the service of a strainer. This is now the material of most value found in these creatures, as fish oils and petroleum have largely replaced the whale oil that was prepared in such great quantities from the blubber of whales. The "blubber" is the lining of fat, from six to fifteen inches in thickness, encasing their bodies for the purpose of keeping them warm, as they are hot-blooded animals and would suffer greatly from cold unless thus protected. The largest bow-head whales are about sixty-five feet in length, the head taking up nearly one-third of this measurement. They are the largest whales of a black color, and the average amount of oil taken from their blubber is two hundred barrels. In the Far North, where they breed, through ice of three inches in thickness, by bumping their huge heads up against it, they are known as "ice-breakers." The caudal fin, or tail, of these animals is enormous, measuring from sixteen to twenty feet across. It is by means of this great paddle that they are enabled to reach the surface of the water so swiftly from the great depths to which they descend after their so-called "spouting" are out, and it is with these tails that they make havoc when near the small boats filled with fishermen who are about to harpoon them and seek their capture.

The breathing habits of whales are about as interesting as anything concerning them, and they differ somewhat in different species of the whale family. When his peace is undisturbed, the Greenland or Polar whale remains near the ocean's surface from one to one-half minutes, and in this time "spouts," by discharging an enormous amount of vapor from the "blow-hole" on top of his head, from six to nine times. After a quick inhalation of air he disappears for the lower regions where he may remain for twenty-five minutes, if he is feeding, but if a harpoon is sticking in perpendicular attitude just as they plunge deep down where no human skill may disturb them. Again, they will raise their enormous heads out of water and look about to see what is going on over the top surface of their homes. The sperm whale has the faculty of sinking instantly if frightened even if in nearly a horizontal position.

When at play it will raise its flukes high in the air and bring them down with a tremendous splash on the water, or it may descend a few fathoms and shoot powerfully, clear out of water, falling back on its surface with a bang which raises a mountain of foam and spray that may be seen for ten miles distant and producing a loud noise like the report of a coast-defense gun.

Contrary to the peculiar formation of the long, narrow jaw of the sperm whale, the animal has to turn under-side up before it may grasp any large object between its jaws. There is recorded one case at least in which a sperm whale struck a boat, smashing it in pieces and catching and killing one of its occupants as he fell backward into the water from the crushed boat bow that had been sent high in the air.

Regarding size, the sexes vary greatly, the largest males of sperm whales being from eighty to eighty-four feet long, while their more slender mates are from one-third to one-fourth that length.

The last sperm whale observed on the New England coast, and also the youngest sperm whale ever seen, occurred off New Bedford, Mass., March 29th, 1842. It measured sixteen feet in length and weighed 3,050 pounds.

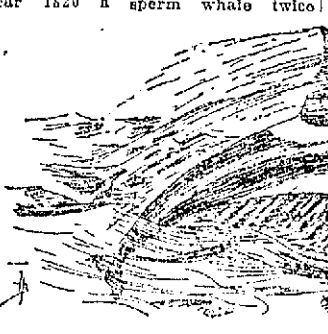

The most valuable product of the sperm whale is the oil from a large cavity in the head called the "case," which sometimes contains twenty-five barrels of this valuable product.

The largest bull sperm whales, whose jaws may create such destruction with a small boat, as described above, have other methods of attack as given in the following: In the year 1820 a sperm whale twice rammed the American ship "Essex," while at sea, which sunk in ten minutes after the second attack was made. Without doubt, some ships that have never been heard from after leaving port, have been speedily sent to the bottom by these sea monsters whose powerful heads have been used as battering rams against their sides. The humpback of the Pacific Ocean is another member of the whale family, ranging in size from 25 to 75 feet in length, from whose five to fifteen inch blubber 5 to 75 barrels of oil are gathered.

The largest of all whales, and probably the largest creature which has ever existed upon the earth, is the sulphur-bottom whale of the Pacific, so-called from the yellowish coloring along the whitish belly of the huge animal. Captain Scammon reports the measurements and weight of one as given to him by Captain Roys, who measured it. The length was 95 feet; girth 39 feet; length of jaw bone 21 feet; length of longest baleen four feet; yield of oil 110 barrels; weight of whole animal from calculations, 294,000 pounds. How would you like to row up alongside of such a creature in an "outrigger"? It wouldn't be long before it would be an out-and-out-rigger.

Killer Whale or Orca.

ger sure enough. The skin along the throat and chest of the sulphur bottom, and a few other whales shown in the illustrations, you will notice has a sort of corrugated appearance. This wrinkled section is a scheme of nature's for allowing of the distension of these parts after a generous meal has been taken. The sulphur bottom is the swiftest as well as the largest of the whale family, and on this account is seldom pursued and never captured except by aid of a bomb-lance, which explodes on entering the animal.

Another variety of whale is the fin-back, which resembles the sulphur-bottom whale but is a much smaller animal. The California gray whale is still another variety inhabiting the lagoons along the southern coast of lower California.

The taking of whales, as some people know, is done from small boats which have been sent out from large whaling ships with all the tackle aboard for the finishing up of the business. The capture involves much danger for the men who approach the great animals in a small boat and plunge the harpoon into the body of the creature.

The most terrible animals of the ocean, hunting their prey in packs as do wolves, and attacking it with fearful ferocity, are killer-whales or orcas, which are to be met with in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. A bunch of these creatures will attack a toothless whale and tear him terribly about the mouth, eating out his tongue if they can get a chance at it, as he plunges about in the sea of foam trying to shake off his savage enemies, who battle with him until he is exhausted and goes to the bottom where they tear his body to pieces and devour it after bringing it, piece by piece, to the surface to swallow.

One captain stated that 13 porpoises and 14 seals were found in the stomach of one of these killers of the Atlantic.

LOCAL EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

The time is now at hand when the evening schools of this city will open for business. These schools offer great opportunities to young people for improving their education along lines that will enable them to advance to higher positions. There is no excuse for anybody to be without a liberal education when so many institutions offer facilities for acquiring efficiency in every branch of knowledge not only cultural but technical.

The Textile school offers inducements to those who are ambitious to advance in the work of textile manufacture. The free evening lectures point the way to those who are already employed in the mills. It is true, of course, that these lectures are of little use to those who do not follow them up by careful study and practical work. Every mill and every factory is a great combination of trades, and the Textile school prepares students to enter these trades from the lowest to the highest.

Then in the industrial school there is an opportunity to acquire the rudiments of various mechanical trades. This school makes a specialty of instructing the student in the principles of various trades and this knowledge may be turned to practical account in the work of earning a living. This school is in its infancy, but it gives promise of great accomplishments for the benefit of the rising generation.

An educational foundation is necessary in every trade, and this is obtained in the day and evening schools. Those who cannot attend the day high school may acquire a very fair education by taking up a course in the evening high.

The evening drawing schools offer instructions in special lines that are very beneficial to young men who intend to enter mechanical trades. The commercial course in the high school, and the commercial branches taught in the evening high, if properly followed will prove beneficial to any young man entering mechanical life.

It is true that cities like Boston offer more in the line of technical training than is available in the Lowell schools, but nevertheless, the Lowell boy who is ambitious to rise can find the opportunity and the assistance that he needs in one or other of the various schools in Lowell.

If a young man is ambitious to take a college course; if he has the energy to work, and the tact to turn his work to practical account, he can pay his way through college. In these days of free public instruction nothing but the determination is necessary to enable a young man to get the very best education obtainable anywhere, but all this means work. It means perseverance in one particular line, and with a definite aim in view. The man who does not know what he wants, and who simply drifts along, will never accomplish anything, yet such a young man may wonder why it is that he does not succeed like others who follow a definite purpose with lifelong persistence.

Ex-President Eliot of Harvard contributed a valuable service to the cause of good government in this country and one that is applicable in the coming election in which he gives the reasons why Wilson as candidate of the democratic party should be supported in preference to either of the two parties into which the republican party is divided. Dr. Eliot in his characteristically clear method of marshalling facts and reaching logical conclusions, finds that the interests of the country require a prompt and effective reduction of the tariff "which prevents due expansion of American commerce, protects manufacturing industries against wholesome foreign competition, supports artificial monopolies and raises the price of many necessities of life." This is the opinion of Dr. Eliot is sufficient to prevent any patriotic citizen from voting for either wing of the republican party.

President Taft's veto of measures devised to afford relief from tariff oppression, shows that he cannot be relied upon to aid in bringing about the needed changes in the tariff.

Dr. Eliot finds that Mr. Roosevelt has never shown any proper comprehension of or interest in the tariff while his present utterances, says the doctor, "are contradictory and vague yet likely to mislead the farmers, mechanics and operatives from whom he asks votes."

On the other hand Dr. Eliot believes that the democratic party holds out more hope or expectation of a wise dealing with the reforms proposed than does either of the other parties. "The published utterances of Governor Wilson on the tariff," he says, "are more prudent and measured in regard to the proposed changes than those of ex-President Roosevelt. Indeed Governor Wilson's temperance, knowledge and experience fit him to deal wisely as president of the United States with all these philanthropic questions."

Dr. Eliot is particularly severe in dealing with Roosevelt's proposed changes in the constitution. If the third term were ever expedient it becomes highly inexpedient when the candidate "is impulsive, self confident, headstrong, impatient of restraint and given to the use of extravagant language."

If the constitution is to be changed the work should be effected only by the method of cautious experiment with adequate notice and not by the sudden impetuous rush of an emotional multitude as provided in Col. Roosevelt's program.

Altogether the letter of Dr. Eliot casts a lurid light upon the issues of the campaign and his reasons are worthy of careful consideration by every voter.

AN IMPOSITION ON NEWSPAPERS

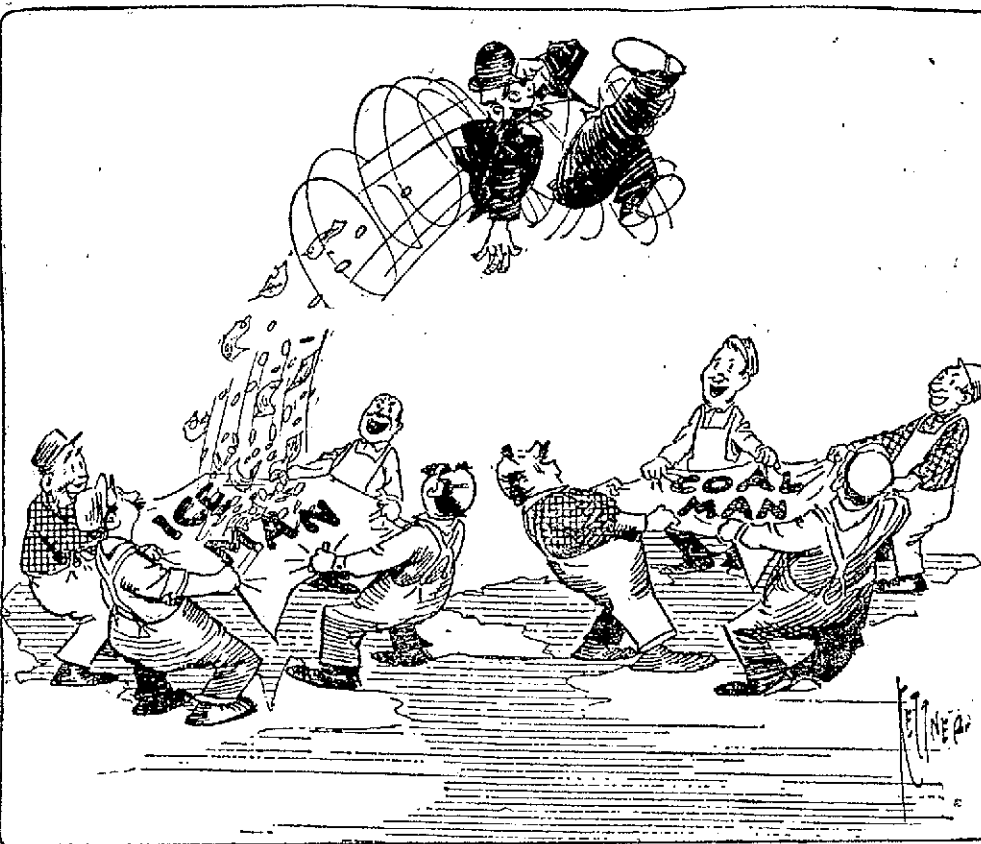

The Massachusetts Press association has adopted resolutions condemning the provision of a law recently passed by congress by which newspapers will be deprived of the use of the mails unless they mark certain reading matter "advertisement." This is calculated to cause the newspapers a great deal of trouble and it is wholly unnecessary as this is provided for so far as necessary in the law relative to political advertising. The law further requires that to have the privilege of second class mail matter, the papers must file the name or names of the owners of stock, bonds or other securities to the amount of $500 or more which has been issued or sold. The press association claims that these provisions are not only unnecessary and obnoxious, but unconstitutional. If not repealed they are likely to be tested in the courts as soon as possible.

This law seems to be an unwarranted interference with the business of the press if not actually a restriction upon the liberty of the press. The post office has already expressed a doubt as to the possibility of enforcing any such law. The whole thing seems to be an unwarranted interference by congress in the detailed working of the department. The press of the country resents the attempt to impose unnecessary restrictions as to the matter published or its right to print legitimate articles without restraint.

It is a significant fact that neither the republican nor the third term orators are discussing the tariff. How can they, when both their candidates have always been stand-patters where the tariff was concerned? And yet the tariff is largely responsible for all the burdens of the people of this country are struggling under. No program for relief from present trouble can have any value which does not have for its very coping-stone the revision downward of the tariff.

The estrangement between "Will" and "Theodore" has reached a point where "Theodore's" campaign manager accuses "Will's" campaign manager of setting detectives to shadowing him; worse still, "Theodore's" manager charges that the detectives tapped his wires and actually overheard a conversation between himself and one of "Theodore's" chief backers, Mr. McCormack.

The public parks looked very beautiful this year; but they did not prove as useful to the citizens as they might have been. A little more shade, a greater number of seats and a greater area available without "keep off the grass" signs would make the parks more enjoyable.

IN THE AIR

Seen and Heard

A young druggist who was recently chosen as a jurymen for the next session of the superior court, and who is quite an artist on the flute which he plays about five hours a day, was asked questions relative to the duties of a jurymen and when he was told that he would be confined to the court house unless excused by the judge, he quickly inquired if he could take along his flute and practice during his spare moments.

To a man successful in his chosen work, time is valuable. He is always busy. The hours which by the ordinary person are "killed" in theatre-going, club-frequenting, talking-on-the-corner and the like are by him squeezed of every possible second in his endeavor to keep pace with the ever-growing work before him.

This is the case with a medical friend of mine whose patients are so numerous that in order to give them the best of attention he has decided to give up his supper hour. Knowing that previous to this decision he was then a busy man, I remarked to him that were he to continue to allow his work to interfere with his meals he would be in the same position as was the goldfish placed in charge of a servant girl.

This young woman had been directed by her mistress, who was going out of town, to look after the wants of a goldfish which swam about in a bowl in the mistress's sitting room. The maid, however, being of an experimental turn of mind, lessened the quantity of water in the bowl each morning to ascertain its effect upon the fish. After several weeks she noticed that her charge could manage to exist without any water whatever. Then, continuing the experiment, she placed the fish in the cage of a canary. Here the creature still continued to thrive. But on coming into the room one morning to see how the pet was enjoying its new quarters the girl met with a surprise. The fish lay in the drinking dish of the canary and moved not a fin. It had met its end by drowning.

On the same principle, I remarked to the doctor, would he be attacked with indigestion or some other stomach disorder if suppers be given up, he ever sat down and ate a real, hearty meal.

Dr. W. A. Quayle, bishop of the Methodist church and a popular lecturer, in the early days of his ministry, went back to preach one Sunday to a former congregation in Kansas, and was detained by one of his old parishioners. After the evening services the family gathered round the hearth and exchanged reminiscences with their guest, apparently without any thought of retiring. Eleven o'clock came and 12 o'clock.

The conversation lagged and all showed unmistakable signs of weariness. Doctor Quayle yawned politely and rubbed his drooping eyelids. His host moved restlessly in his chair. His hostess eyed the timepiece with growing alarm. The very air was drowsy, but no one seemed able to end the awkward situation. Finally, as the clock chimed 1:30 o'clock, his hostess asked deprecatingly, but with a note of desperation in her voice:

"Brother Quayle, when do you go to bed?"

"When I get a chance," replied Dr. Quayle meekly.

DYING IN HARNESS

Only a fallen horse, stretched out there on the road, stretched in the broken shafts, and crushed by the heavy load; Only a fallen horse, and a circle of wondering eyes.

Watching the frightened teamster goading the beast to rise. Hold! for his toll is over—no more labor for him.

See the poor neck outstretched, and the patient eyes grow dim;

See on the friendly stones how peacefully rests the head.

Thinking, if dumb beasts think, how good it is to be dead.

After the weary journey, how restful With the broken shafts and the cruel load—waiting only to die.

Watchers, he died in harness—died in the shafts and straps.

Fell, and the burden killed him; one of the day's mishaps.

One of the passing wonders marking the city road.

A tatter'd dying in harness, headless of call or goad.

Passers, crowding the pathway, staying your steps awhile.

What is the symbol? Only death—why should we pause to smile.

At death for a beast of burden? On, through the busy street.

That is ever and ever echoing the tread of hurrying feet.

What was the sign? A symbol to touch the tireless will?

Does he who taught in parables speak in parables still?

The seed on the rock is wasted—on headless hearts of men.

That gather and sow and reap and lose—labor and sleep and then—

Then the prize! A crowd in the street of ever echoing tread—

The toiler, crushed by the heavy load, is there in his harness—dead!

—John Boyle O'Reilly.

The Rev. Joseph H. Twichell, for nearly 50 years pastor of the Asylum Hill Congregational church in Hartford, saw three years of service in the Civil war as chaplain of the 71st New York regiment.
